Pole On Truce Team Dashes To Freedom

Granted Sanctuary After 'Last Chance' Escape From Reds

SEOUL, Thursday, Sept. 10 (AP)—A Polish member of a neutral team policing the Korean truce bolted to U. S. sanctuary yesterday even as a plane warmed up to take him back to Red North Korea.

"It's my last chance," he blurted to a startled U. S. officer attached to the neutral nations inspection team.

The Pole, Jan Hajdukiewicz, was given political asylum by Col. Harold T. Babb, commander of the air base at Kangnung on the east coast, where the Pole made his break. He was the fourth Pole to make dramatic escape from his Communist homeland in recent months.

Long-Time Anti-Red

Hajdukiewicz, vowing he was an anti-Communist of long standing, was taken to a secret destination. It was reported he was somewhere in the Seoul area.

As told by Babb and an Army release, this was the sequence of events:

Hajdukiewicz, a civilian interpreter with the Polish delegation on the neutral inspection team, had been stationed at Kangnung since Aug. 24. Kangnung is one of five South Korean ports of entry through which troop and equipment replacements are allowed to enter under the armistice terms.

Early Wednesday morning, the Polish group went out to the airfield to catch a plane for North Korea. The plane warmed up its engines. It was 5:30 a.m.

Afraid To Go Back

At that instant, Hajdukiewicz broke away from his countrymen and approached Maj. Edward Moran, U. S. liaison officer for the inspection team.

"It's my last chance," Moran quoted him as saying.

The Pole declared he was afraid to go back to Communist soil because of his "long-standing opposition to communism."

It all happened so quickly that there was no disturbance. It appeared that other Communist members of the team did not even know what happened.

Hostile Gunfire Off China Kills Six On British Boat

Communist Vessel Reported Involved

LONDON, Sept 9 (AP)—Hostile gunfire killed six crewmen and wounded five today aboard a British naval launch of Hong Kong's local defense force, the Admiralty disclosed tonight.

A spokesman said the Admiralty was awaiting word as to the nationality of the attacking force and whether a vessel or shore batteries did the shooting. He declined comment on a published report from Hong Kong that a Communist Chinese ship was involved.

Hong Kong is a British crown colony, trade center and naval station off the south coast of Communist China, surrounded by a cluster of Communist-manned islands.

Details Lacking

The Admiralty announced earlier today that the 72-foot motor launch 1323 had been fired on, that she suffered casualties and that the destroyer Concord had been ordered to take the casualties to Hong Kong.

Information was lacking here, however, on several details of the incident. Questions as to the site of the shooting and even whether the launch returned the fire went unanswered.

"We are as anxious as you are to get more information from the Far East," an Admiralty spokesman told reporters.

Presumably, however, the shooting took place somewhere in the vicinity of the Communist-occupied islands dotting the South China Sea around the crown colony.

Destroyer Fired On

The destroyer Concord herself was fired on by Chinese batteries at the approaches to Hong Kong in August, 1950, but escaped damage.

Small boats and ships many times have drawn fire when they ventured close to the Red islands, mostly within 25 miles of Hong Kong. Armed Chinese vessels have attacked police boats at the outskirts of Hong Kong's territorial waters, inflicting casualties.

The naval launch, armed with two light guns, normally carries a crew of 14. She is of about 50 tons displacement.

New Hurricane Nears Bahamas

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 9 (AP)—Hurricane warnings were hoisted in the Bahama Islands today as a tropical storm with top winds of 95 miles an hour developed suddenly in the Atlantic.

At 5 p.m. (EST), the Miami Weather Bureau said the hurricane was centered 700 miles eastsoutheast of Miami and was moving in a northwest direction at a forward speed of 12 miles per hour.

It offered an immediate threat to the British-owned Bahamas. Chief Storm Forecaster Grady Norton also said there was a definite possibility it would strike the Florida coast.

Winds of 95 m.p.h. raged over a small area northeast of the center and gales reached outward 150 miles to the north and east. Only light winds were reported west and southwest of the eye.

Continued northwest movement and a slow increase in size and intensity of the storm was forecast.

Barber Says:
Save Your Hair From Wear And Tear, Prevent Baldness

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Experts seem to wind up in Washington eventually, so it was only natural today to bump into a man who says he has a sure-fire plan for preventing baldness.

His name is Angelo Mantello, an earnest, 56-year-old barber from Hartford, Conn. It was 10 years ago that he had the great revelation. It suddenly occurred to him that most of the men who are bald got that way because they wore their hair out, by sleeping on their arms or ramming their heads into pillows or headboards.

"It's just like a lawn," Mantello said. "Keep walking on it long enough, and you wear out the grass."

Mantello explained his system in a booklet, "Baldness, Seven Ways To Help Prevent It." In the book he calmly dropped a remark that may surprise baldheads from coast to coast.

"Baldness is not necessary or inevitable," Mantello wrote. "Such notions are outmoded."

The Mantello plan is simple. He has designed a pillow, a narrow job only six inches across in which no one possibly could bury his head and thereby wear out his hair. By keeping the arms and headboards away from the head, Mantello says, a fellow's hair can be saved from wear and tear.

State-Wide Raid Alert Is Set For 2:01 P. M. Sept. 22

PIKESVILLE, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—"Operation Checkup," a state-wide air raid alert, has been set for 2:01 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 22, by Maryland's Civil Defense Agency.

Sherley Ewing, state civil defense director, has been working for weeks on arrangements for the test.

All traffic is to stop for six minutes, youngsters at school, workers in downtown buildings and at industrial plants will stream to available air raid shelters.

Housewives and motorists have been asked to turn on radio and television sets to get instructions when the red alert warning sounds.

World Bank Will Suspend Czechs Unless Debt Paid

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — A 19-nation committee of the World Bank recommended today that the bank suspend Czechoslovakia, only Iron Curtain member of the 55-nation institution, unless she completes her dollar subscription to the bank by Dec. 31.

At the same time, however, an official of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) reported that Czechoslovakia has taken steps to clear up its status with the IMF, twin institution to the bank.

Czechs Owe $625,000

Czechoslovakia still owes the bank $625,000 of her 2½ million subscription quota in dollars for the bank's capital.

Nationalist China is the only other nation in arrears on its subscription, but has been given an extension in which to complete payment.

The bank two years ago rejected a similar extension asked by Czechoslovakia, but took no action to force payment.

Czechoslovakia'a action to clear her accounts with the fund was taken as an indication she would probably try to meet the World Bank's deadline, and stay in both organizations. Membership is separate, but the same 55 nations belong to both the bank and fund.

Governors Open Meeting

The bank's committee on finance and organization acted against Czechoslovakia shortly after the Board of Governors of the two world finance institutions opened their joint meeting here today.

The governors, for the most part the same in both organizations, will consider the bank committee's recommendation on Czechoslovakia in a session next Saturday, final day of the annual meeting.

Receptionist Indicted In Slaying Of Girl, 14

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP)—Mildred McDonald, 25, pretty Somerville receptionist, today was indicted on a charge of first degree murder in the Aug. 24 slaying of Mary Di Rocco, 14, sister of her former boy friend.

The court ordered Miss McDonald arraigned tomorrow morning.

The jury heard nine witnesses including the victim's father.

The young receptionist confessed the killing to police. She said the younger girl taunted her about her broken romance with Joseph Di Rocco, 25, now married to another woman.

Dulles Reassures ANZUS Allies U.S. Would Go To Aid

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles publicly renewed assurances to Australia and New Zealand today that the United States would go to their aid in the event any aggressor attacked them.

Dulles reiterated this pledge as he opened a conference of the three nations on possible new steps to meet the Communist threat in the Pacific area.

At the initial session of foreign ministers, Dulles emphasized the meeting "has only one supreme purpose—that of contributing to the preservation of peace."

Dulles Hails Treaty

But, in hailing the Australian-New Zealand-United States (ANZUS) defense treaty which linked the three governments, Dulles said:

"The other day in St. Louis I stated that if events are likely which will in fact lead us to fight we would make clear our intention in advance; then we shall probably not have to fight. This is the feeling which underlay this ANZUS treaty."

Dulles noted the defense pact states clearly no potential aggressor should be under the illusion "any of us stand alone in the Pacific area."

Peace Outlook Brighter

Webb claimed to see "signs which indicate that the outlook for peace may be somewhat brighter." But, he added that the "threat of overt aggression is ever present" and the three governments should press forward to build up defenses as rapidly as possible.

Casey said "sources of infection which could spread at any time to constitute a common danger to us all" continue to exist in the Pacific region.

McCarthy Says Army Sent Out Red Propaganda

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) charged today that the Army has sent out "prize Communist propaganda" to 37 of its Army commands. He ordered a swift investigation.

McCarthy showed reporters photographic copies of 70 pages of a classified document which he said was prepared for an indoctrination course for intelligence officers and others in the 37 commands. It was dated January, 1952.

"If you read this and believed it," he declared, "you would move to Russia. It is prize Communist propaganda, clear cut Communist propaganda. The best I've seen for quite some time."

McCarthy said he has asked the Pentagon to send the author before his Senate investigations subcommittee for questioning behind closed doors—tomorrow if the man is available.

The document contained a preamble signed "Col. R. S. Bratton, general staff with troops, deputy" and appeared to have originated at general headquarters of the Far East Command in Japan.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Sept. 9 (AP)—A farmer who digs for diamonds as a sideline was reported today to have found a 120-carat diamond worth about 5,000 pounds ($14,000) and a few minutes later a 11¾-carat diamond near Kimberley Camp, Cape Province.

Blind Man Weeps Over Body Of Dog

President Flies To Washington For Vinson Rites

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The body of Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson lay in state today as President Eisenhower prepared to fly here for the funeral tomorrow.

Long-time friends and associates of Vinson, who died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday, paid their respects to the 63-year-old jurist in a flower-banked funeral chapel a block from the White House.

In Denver, officials at the summer White House said Eisenhower planned to leave for Washington by plane tonight (11 p.m., EST) to attend memorial funeral services at Washington Episcopal Cathedral at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Ike To Confer With Nixon

The Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of Washington, will officiate at the rites, with members of the Supreme Court serving as honorary pallbearers.

Eisenhower is scheduled to arrive here about 5:45 a.m. tomorrow. He will go directly to the White House where he will confer with Vice President Nixon and staff aides.

Former President Truman, who appointed Vinson as chief justice on June 24, 1946, left Independence, Mo., by train at 7:15 a.m. He was accompanied by Mrs. Truman. They are due in Washington tomorrow at 10:05 a.m. (EST).

Buried In Kentucky

Although Truman has visited Washington since he left office, he and Eisenhower have not met since they rode together in the inaugural parade last Jan. 20.

Following the funeral services here, the body of the late chief justice will be sent to his old home town of Louisia, Ky., for burial there on Friday.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower kept his own counsel on the question of a successor to fill the vacancy on the high tribunal left by Vinson's death.

It said Evangelist Billy James Hargis of Joplin, Mo., chairman of the project, has wired members of the committee in Nurenburg, Germany, to proceed with the project.

Dr. Ernst Schmidt, pastor of the Evangelical Pfarramt Lictenhoff Church in Nurenburg, will direct the operation, the council said.

Alleged '4 Percenter' Admits 'Indiscretion'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — Warren L. Stephenson, who served as executive secretary of President Eisenhower's inaugural committee, was quoted today as acknowledging he was "indiscreet" in spreading information about bids for building rocket launchers for the Navy.

"I know right from wrong," Stephenson said. "I might say I was indiscreet about it."

Stephenson's testimony, taken at a closed-door hearing last June, was disclosed today by a House armed services subcommittee.

The House group is digging into the activities of "four percenters" in a sequel to the "five percenter" inquiries of the Truman administration.

Jon Jonkel Mentioned

In addition to the House subcommittee, the Navy, the FBI and the General Accounting Office are all investigating leaks of confidential information from the Navy on the rocket launcher bids.

The transcript of the June hearing showed Stephenson got into one attempted "four percenter" deal through a chance meeting in the office of Jon Jonkel, manager of the 1950 campaign of Sen. Butler (R-Md).

The transcript disclosed that Jonkel introduced Stephenson to Stanley Bishop, a self-styled business "tipster" who has also told a story of profiting from stray bits of information.

Used Bishop's Information

Stephenson said information he received from Bishop was used in trying to get a 4 per cent fee from a California company

Jonkel said he had no role in the Stephenson-Bishop relationship beyond introducing the men, who happened to be in his office at the same time.

Jonkel, who now operates an export and import business, was fined $5,000 in Baltimore Criminal Court as a result of his handling of Butler's campaign. He pleaded guilty to violating Maryland's corrupt practices act in failing to keep required accounts of money he handled and failure to report campaign finances properly and promptly.

Names Of POWs On Missing List To Be Released

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The names of 944 Americans believed at one time to have been Korean war prisoners, but who have not been accounted for, will be made public beginning Friday.

The Defense Department, making the announcement today, said the Communists have been asked to account for 610 Army personnel, 312 Air Force, 19 Marines and 3 Navy men.

Their names will be made public 24 hours after the nearest relatives of each man have been notified that the individual is missing.

Western Army Will Practice A-Warfare

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP)—A Western army of 175,000 American, Belgian, French and British troops will practice atomic warfare tomorrow in the biggest inter-allied training maneuver since World War II.

A U. S. Army spokesman said today use of "the latest atomic weapons" will be simulated in the three-day exercise, "Monte Carlo," which begins at dawn Thursday north of Frankfurt.

With the troops maneuvering only a few miles from Soviet-occupied East Germany, no atomic weapons will actually be fired. But the pretense will at least acquaint the four-nation army with their tactical use and potentiality.

Narriman Acts
Ex-Egyptian King Farouk Sued For Divorce, Alimony

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 9 (AP) — Young ex-Queen Narriman filed suit for divorce today from exiled former King Farouk on grounds of adultery, maltreatment, mental cruelty and estrangement.

She asked for alimony amounting to $14,350 a month. For the present she did not seek custody of her son, 19-months-old ex-King Fuad II, who is in Italy with 33-year-old Farouk.

The 19-year-old Narriman left Farouk and the child in Italy last March and disregarded her husband's pleas for her return.

Her attorney, Sheikh Muharram Fahim, in announcing the twin suits for divorce and alimony, hinted that she might later try to regain her son. The suits involve inter-governmental dealings between Egypt and Italy.

Of the infant who was nominally king of Egypt from July 26, 1952, when Farouk was forced to abdicate, until last June 18, when Egypt was proclaimed a republic under President-Premier Mohammed Naguib, the attorney said:

"Narriman has no plans so far to claim the custody of her son Ahmed Fuad."

The former queen, wooed and won by Farouk in a contest with her former fiance, Zaki Hashem, has been living quietly in suburban Heliopolis with her mother since she returned from Italy.

Reds' Reaction To Allies' POW Stand Awaited

Communists Protest Slapping Of Truce Supervisor By Yank

MUNSAN, Thursday, Sept. 10 (AP)—A welter of protests from both the United Nations Command and the Communists added tension and growing ill feeling today to the administration of the Korean military armistice.

The gravest complaint was an Allied demand Wednesday for "prompt action" from the Reds in explaining why 3,404 Allied prisoners, including 944 Americans, were not returned in Operation Big Switch which ended Sunday.

"We now demand that you return these people to us or account to us for each of these individuals," said Maj. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, Allied senior member of the Military Armistice Commission.

"Here is the list. We expect prompt action."

There were other irritations, at or near the surface:

1. A Polish member of the neutral nations supervisory inspection team at Kangnung, on the east coast of South Korea, made a "last chance" bolt to freedom Wednesday while a plane warmed up to take his team back to Red Korea. The Pole, Jan Hadjdukiewicz, was given sanctuary "in line with traditional United States policy of protecting and assisting political refugees." The U. S. Army said the Reds were expected to protest and demand his return at a meeting of the supervisory commission today.

2. The Communists seized on an incident involving the striking of a Swedish officer on the neutral nations inspection team by an angry U. S. enlisted man at Taegu. The chief of the Swedish group on the supervisory commission, Maj. Gen. Sven Grafstrom, said he considered the incident closed, but the U. S. 8th Army announced the enlisted man would be tried by a special court. The Reds called it a "shocking and infuriating incident" and lodged a protest. Identities of the man and details of the dispute were not revealed.

(Peiping radio, heard in San Francisco, said the American was Pfc. Millard Armstrong but gave no hometown. And the Swedish officer was Capt. Rune Larsson.

Purporting to quote from the captain's report, Peiping said Larsson told Armstrong not to write the name of the American liaison officer under the text of a cable. It said Armstrong refused to send the dispatch without the liaison officer's name.

(The Swedish officer was quoted as again ordering the American "in severe words" to take orders. Armstrong was quoted as saying: "I do not take orders from you, man," and smashing Larsson on the chin, drawing blood, and causing "strong headache.")

3. The Communist Peiping radio declared that some 138 Chinese Communist prisoners returned in the final exchange were suffering from nervous exhaustion, rheumatism, arthritis, bad eyesight, serious malnutrition and their "weight was reduced by scores of pounds."

4. The Communists renewed demands that the Allies return 27,000 North Korean prisoners released last June by South Korean police on orders of President Syngman Rhee. The prisoners quickly melted into the civilian population.

442 More Freed POWs Reach U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9 (AP)—More than 400 happy former American war prisoners arrived today aboard the Navy transport Gen. John Pope and got a wild welcome by a crowd giving scant attention to another ship alongside.

The other ship was the Gen. Nelson M. Walker, which brought home the first boatload of freed prisoners, and now is taking on military replacements—troops bound for Korea.

Repatriates on the Pope pressed against the rail as the transport docked next to the Walker and shouted lustily at soldiers heading the other way but relatives on the dock had eyes only for their long missing loved ones.

The Pope was the fifth repatriation ship to dock at Ft. Mason since the signing of the Korean armistice. The 442 repatriates aboard brought to more than 1,500 the number of POWs back home from Communist prison stockades out of some 3,500 exchanged at Panmunjom.

Weather Forecast
Fair today with high 76 to 80.

The Mantello plan is simple. He has designed a pillow, a narrow job only six inches across in which no one possibly could bury his head and thereby wear out his hair. By keeping the arms and headboards away from the head, Mantello says, a fellow's hair can be saved from wear and tear.

State-Wide Raid Alert Is Set For 2:01 P. M. Sept. 22

PIKESVILLE, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—"Operation Checkup," a state-wide air raid alert, has been set for 2:01 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 22, by Maryland's Civil Defense Agency.

Sherley Ewing, state civil defense director, has been working for weeks on arrangements for the test.

All traffic is to stop for six minutes, youngsters at school, workers in downtown buildings and at industrial plants will stream to available air raid shelters.

Housewives and motorists have been asked to turn on radio and television sets to get instructions when the red alert warning sounds.

World Bank Will Suspend Czechs Unless Debt Paid

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — A 19-nation committee of the World Bank recommended today that the bank suspend Czechoslovakia, only Iron Curtain member of the 55-nation institution, unless she completes her dollar subscription to the bank by Dec. 31.

At the same time, however, an official of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) reported that Czechoslovakia has taken steps to clear up its status with the IMF, twin institution to the bank.

Czechs Owe $625,000

Czechoslovakia still owes the bank $625,000 of her 2½ million subscription quota in dollars for the bank's capital.

Nationalist China is the only other nation in arrears on its subscription, but has been given an extension in which to complete payment.

The bank two years ago rejected a similar extension asked by Czechoslovakia, but took no action to force payment.

Czechoslovakia's action to clear her accounts with the fund was taken as an indication she would probably try to meet the World Bank's deadline, and stay in both organizations. Membership is separate, but the same 55 nations belong to both the bank and fund.

Governors Open Meeting

The bank's committee on finance and organization acted against Czechoslovakia shortly after the Board of Governors of the two world finance institutions opened their joint meeting here today.

The governors, for the most part the same in both organizations, will consider the bank committee's recommendation on Czechoslovakia in a session next Saturday, final day of the annual meeting.

Receptionist Indicted In Slaying Of Girl, 14

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP)—Mildred McDonald, 25, pretty Somerville receptionist, today was indicted on a charge of first degree murder in the Aug. 24 slaying of Mary Di Rocco, 14, sister of her former boy friend.

The court ordered Miss McDonald arraigned tomorrow morning.

The jury heard nine witnesses including the victim's father.

The young receptionist confessed the killing to police. She said the younger girl taunted her about her broken romance with Joseph Di Rocco, 25, now married to another woman.

Dulles Reassures ANZUS Allies U.S. Would Go To Aid

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles publicly renewed assurances to Australia and New Zealand today that the United States would go to their aid in the event any aggressor attacked them.

Dulles reiterated this pledge as he opened a conference of the three nations on possible new steps to meet the Communist threat in the Pacific area.

At the initial session of foreign ministers, Dulles emphasized the meeting "has only one supreme purpose—that of contributing to the preservation of peace."

Dulles Hails Treaty

But, in hailing the Australian-New Zealand-United States (ANZUS) defense treaty which linked the three governments, Dulles said:

"The other day in St. Louis I stated that if events are likely which will in fact lead us to fight we would make clear our intention in advance; then we shall probably not have to fight. This is the feeling which underlay this ANZUS treaty."

Dulles noted the defense pact states clearly no potential aggressor should be under the illusion "any of us stand alone in the Pacific area."

Peace Outlook Brighter

Webb claimed to see "signs which indicate that the outlook for peace may be somewhat brighter." But, he added that the "threat of overt aggression is ever present" and the three governments should press forward to build up defenses as rapidly as possible.

Casey said "sources of infection which could spread at any time to constitute a common danger to us all" continue to exist in the Pacific region.

McCarthy Says Army Sent Out Red Propaganda

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) charged today that the Army has sent out "prize Communist propaganda" to 37 of its Army commands. He ordered a swift investigation.

McCarthy showed reporters photographic copies of 70 pages of a classified document which he said was prepared for an indoctrination course for intelligence officers and others in the 37 commands. It was dated January, 1952.

"If you read this and believed it," he declared, "you would move to Russia. It is prize Communist propaganda, clear cut Communist propaganda. The best I've seen for quite some time."

McCarthy said he has asked the Pentagon to send the author before his Senate investigations subcommittee for questioning behind closed doors—tomorrow if the man is available.

The document contained a preamble signed "Col. R. S. Bratton, general staff with troops, deputy" and appeared to have originated at general headquarters of the Far East Command in Japan.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Sept. 9 (AP)—A farmer who digs for diamonds as a sideline was reported today to have found a 120-carat diamond worth about 5,000 pounds ($14,000) and a few minutes later a 11¾-carat diamond near Kimberley Camp, Cape Province.

President Flies To Washington For Vinson Rites

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The body of Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson lay in state today as President Eisenhower prepared to fly here for the funeral tomorrow.

Long-time friends and associates of Vinson, who died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday, paid their respects to the 63-year-old jurist in a flower-banked funeral chapel a block from the White House.

In Denver, officials at the summer White House said Eisenhower planned to leave for Washington by plane tonight (11 p.m., EST) to attend memorial funeral services at Washington Episcopal Cathedral at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

Ike To Confer With Nixon

The Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of Washington, will officiate at the rites, with members of the Supreme Court serving as honorary pallbearers.

Eisenhower is scheduled to arrive here about 5:45 a.m. tomorrow. He will go directly to the White House where he will confer with Vice President Nixon and staff aides.

Former President Truman, who appointed Vinson as chief justice on June 24, 1946, left Independence, Mo., by train at 7:15 a.m. He was accompanied by Mrs. Truman. They are due in Washington tomorrow at 10:05 a.m. (EST).

Buried In Kentucky

Although Truman has visited Washington since he left office, he and Eisenhower have not met since they rode together in the inaugural parade last Jan. 20.

Following the funeral services here, the body of the late chief justice will be sent to his old home town of Louisia, Ky., for burial there on Friday.

Meanwhile, Eisenhower kept his own counsel on the question of a successor to fill the vacancy on the high tribunal left by Vinson's death.

"Operation Bible" Given Green Light

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—The International Council of Christian Churches said today it will send a barrage of 10,000 balloons carrying small Bibles into Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia from Western Germany.

It said Evangelist Billy James Hargis of Joplin, Mo., chairman of the project, has wired members of the committee in Nurenburg, Germany, to proceed with the project.

Dr. Ernst Schmidt, pastor of the Evangelical Pfarramt Lictenhoff Church in Nurenburg, will direct the operation, the council said.

Alleged '4 Percenter' Admits 'Indiscretion'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — Warren L. Stephenson, who served as executive secretary of President Eisenhower's inaugural committee, was quoted today as acknowledging he was "indiscreet" in spreading information about bids for building rocket launchers for the Navy.

"I know right from wrong," Stephenson said. "I might say I was indiscreet about it."

Stephenson's testimony, taken at a closed-door hearing last June, was disclosed today by a House armed services subcommittee.

The House group is digging into the activities of "four percenters" in a sequel to the "five percenter" inquiries of the Truman administration.

Jon Jonkel Mentioned

In addition to the House subcommittee, the Navy, the FBI and the General Accounting Office are all investigating leaks of confidential information from the Navy on the rocket launcher bids.

The transcript of the June hearing showed Stephenson got into one attempted "four percenter" deal through a chance meeting in the office of Jon Jonkel, manager of the 1950 campaign of Sen. Butler (R-Md).

The transcript disclosed that Jonkel introduced Stephenson to Stanley Bishop, a self-styled business "tipster" who has also told a story of profiting from stray bits of information.

Used Bishop's Information

Stephenson said information he received from Bishop was used in trying to get a 4 per cent fee from a California company

Jonkel said he had no role in the Stephenson-Bishop relationship beyond introducing the men, who happened to be in his office at the same time.

Jonkel, who now operates an export and import business, was fined $5,000 in Baltimore Criminal Court as a result of his handling of Butler's campaign. He pleaded guilty to violating Maryland's corrupt practices act in failing to keep required accounts of money he handled and failure to report campaign finances properly and promptly.

Names Of POWs On Missing List To Be Released

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—The names of 944 Americans believed at one time to have been Korean war prisoners, but who have not been accounted for, will be made public beginning Friday.

The Defense Department, making the announcement today, said the Communists have been asked to account for 610 Army personnel, 312 Air Force, 19 Marines and 3 Navy men.

Their names will be made public 24 hours after the nearest relatives of each man have been notified that the individual is missing.

Western Army Will Practice A-Warfare

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP)—A Western army of 175,000 American, Belgian, French and British troops will practice atomic warfare tomorrow in the biggest inter-allied training maneuver since World War II.

A U. S. Army spokesman said today use of "the latest atomic weapons" will be simulated in the three-day exercise, "Monte Carlo," which begins at dawn Thursday north of Frankfurt.

With the troops maneuvering only a few miles from Soviet-occupied East Germany, no atomic weapons will actually be fired. But the pretense will at least acquaint the four-nation army with their tactical use and potentiality.

Narriman Acts

Ex-Egyptian King Farouk Sued For Divorce, Alimony

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 9 (AP) — Young ex-Queen Narriman filed suit for divorce today from exiled former King Farouk on grounds of adultery, maltreatment, mental cruelty and estrangement.

She asked for alimony amounting to $14,350 a month. For the present she did not seek custody of her son, 19-months-old ex-King Fuad II, who is in Italy with 33-year-old Farouk.

The 19-year-old Narriman left Farouk and the child in Italy last March and disregarded her husband's pleas for her return.

Her attorney, Sheikh Muharram Fahim, in announcing the twin suits for divorce and alimony, hinted that she might later try to regain her son. The suits involve inter-governmental dealings between Egypt and Italy.

Of the infant who was nominally king of Egypt from July 26, 1952, when Farouk was forced to abdicate, until last June 18, when Egypt was proclaimed a republic under President-Premier Mohammed Naguib, the attorney said:

"Narriman has no plans so far to claim the custody of her son Ahmed Fuad."

Reds' Reaction To Allies' POW Stand Awaited

Communists Protest Slapping Of Truce Supervisor By Yank

MUNSAN, Thursday, Sept. 10 (AP)—A welter of protests from both the United Nations Command and the Communists added tension and growing ill feeling today to the administration of the Korean military armistice.

The gravest complaint was an Allied demand Wednesday for "prompt action" from the Reds in explaining why 3,404 Allied prisoners, including 944 Americans, were not returned in Operation Big Switch which ended Sunday.

"We now demand that you return these people to us or account to us for each of these individuals," said Maj. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, Allied senior member of the Military Armistice Commission.

There were other irritations, at or near the surface:

1. A Polish member of the neutral nations supervisory inspection team at Kangnung, on the east coast of South Korea, made a "last chance" bolt to freedom Wednesday while a plane warmed up to take his team back to Red Korea. The Pole, Jan Hadjdukiewicz, was given sanctuary "in line with traditional United States policy of protecting and assisting political refugees." The U. S. Army said the Reds were expected to protest and demand his return at a meeting of the supervisory commission today.

2. The Communists seized on an incident involving the striking of a Swedish officer on the neutral nations inspection team by an angry U. S. enlisted man at Taegu. The chief of the Swedish group on the supervisory commission, Maj. Gen. Sven Grafstrom, said he considered the incident closed, but the U. S. 8th Army announced the enlisted man would be tried by a special court. The Reds called it a "shocking and infuriating incident" and lodged a protest. Identities of the man and details of the dispute were not revealed.

(Peiping radio, heard in San Francisco, said the American was Pfc. Millard Armstrong but gave no hometown. And the Swedish officer was Capt. Rune Larsson.

Purporting to quote from the captain's report, Peiping said Larsson told Armstrong not to write the name of the American liaison officer under the text of a cable. It said Armstrong refused to send the dispatch without the liaison officer's name.

(The Swedish officer was quoted as again ordering the American "in severe words" to take orders. Armstrong was quoted as saying: "I do not take orders from you, man," and smashing Larsson on the chin, drawing blood, and causing "strong headache.")

3. The Communist Peiping radio declared that some 138 Chinese Communist prisoners returned in the final exchange were suffering from nervous exhaustion, rheumatism, arthritis, bad eyesight, serious malnutrition and their "weight was reduced by scores of pounds."

4. The Communists renewed demands that the Allies return 27,000 North Korean prisoners released last June by South Korean police on orders of President Syngman Rhee. The prisoners quickly melted into the civilian population.

442 More Freed POWs Reach U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9 (AP)—More than 400 happy former American war prisoners arrived today aboard the Navy transport Gen. John Pope and got a wild welcome by a crowd giving scant attention to another ship alongside.

The other ship was the Gen. Nelson M. Walker, which brought home the first boatload of freed prisoners, and now is taking on military replacements—troops bound for Korea.

Repatriates on the Pope pressed against the rail as the transport docked next to the Walker and shouted lustily at soldiers heading the other way but relatives on the dock had eyes only for their long missing loved ones.

The Pope was the fifth repatriation ship to dock at Ft. Mason since the signing of the Korean armistice. The 442 repatriates aboard brought to more than 1,500 the number of POWs back home from Communist prison stockades out of some 3,500 exchanged at Panmunjom.

Eisenhower Pledges Continued U. S. Support Of Adenauer Policy

Chancellor Maps Drive To Get EDC Treaty In Effect

BONN, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower today pledged continued American support to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's policy for strengthening West Europe, unifying Germany and liberating the 18 million East Germans under Communist rule.

In a congratulatory message on Adenauer's sweeping election victory, the President assured the Chancellor of the U. S. government's future cooperation "for the strengthening of a free Europe and the Atlantic community . . . and for the ending of the present artificial division of Germany and the totalitarian (Soviet zone) regime imposed on 18 million of your countrymen."

Dulles Sends Message

Secretary of State Dulles, who voiced open support of Adenauer before the election Sunday, said in another message that the outcome would please all who saw the European problem constructively.

"We can now work together with renewed energy with our British and French friends," Dulles said, "and perhaps it is no empty hope that the Soviet Union also will accept such an overwhelming decision and will do their part to allow the reunification of Germany."

This backing came as Adenauer mapped plans for a diplomatic drive to get the groggy European army project on its feet again. His aim is to have the European Defense Community (EDC) pact ratified by all the six member nations before the year's end. He predicted last night it will be.

Will Retain Foreign Ministry

German foreign officials said this will be Adenauer's first order of business after forming his new government and that he has decided to hold onto the Foreign Ministry, his No. 2 job, until he realizes his lifelong aim of a lasting French-German partnership.

A government spokesman who is Adenauer's deputy, Heinrich von Brentano, said yesterday the 77-year-old Chancellor would give up the Foreign Ministry in forming his new government. Von Brentano, 49, is expected eventually to get the job. By the account of foreign officials, however, the shift will be a matter of months.

Adenauer Foes See Threat To Democracy

BONN, Sept. 9 (AP)—The defeated West German Socialists charged today that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's sweeping election victory gave him "authoritarian powers" that would "endanger democracy" in the federal republic.

An analysis of last Sunday's vote made by the Social Democrat committee said the Adenauer forces were so strong there was danger of authoritarian repression of the state governments and free organizations. Although the voters had rejected extremists of right and left the "threat to democratic basic rights" by the right-wing government had been increased by the election result, the Socialists said.

Bank Clerk, Five Others Arrested

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 9 (AP) — The FBI today announced the arrest of an over-accommodating woman bank clerk and five persons for whom she held up checks for which the bank had insufficient funds.

The woman, Miss Jean Elizabeth Dusing, a 24-year-old divorcee, was charged with misapplication of funds totaling $111,232.04 belonging to the Central Bank and Trust Co. of Miami.

She was bonded and the entire amount was repaid to the bank, which also is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Arrested with Miss Dusing were Chester C. Smallwood, 34, who said he lost $11,245.20 of the missing funds by betting at dog tracks; Tom E. Howell, 65, president of the Thrifty Lumber Co., who obtained $71,952.74; Arthur H. King, 35, operator of a sundry store, $3,728.34; William Maine, owner of Maine Motors, $3,830.02, and Warren Schmikel 32, used car salesman, $375.

Soaking Chicken Before Cooking Reduces Flavor

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Soaking a chicken in water before cooking it steals away some of the tasty flavor, a chemist today advised housewives.

Cold water or any water apparently takes out some of the chemicals that create flavor, Eldon L. Pippen of the Western Regional Research Laboratory, Albany, Calif., told the American Chemical Society.

He suggested using as little water as possible to clean a chicken. Or letting a frozen chicken thaw out by itself rather than by running water over it.

Rita, Aly Khan Near Showdown

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—A showdown neared tonight on whether movie actress Rita Hayworth will approve a divorce settlement from Prince Aly Khan.

Her attorney, Bartley Crum, flew here from Paris today amid a maze of conflicting statements concerning the agreement.

He said he would fly on tonight to Las Vegas, Nev., where the film star has been visiting singer Dick Haymes, her next husband-to-be.

Crum told newsmen at Idlewild Airport that this was the picture:

1. The agreement called for Aly to set up a one million dollar trust fund for his and Miss Hayworth's 3-year-old daughter, Yasmin.

2. Nothing in the agreement would prevent Miss Hayworth from bringing the child up as an American.

3. Aly and his father, the Aga Khan, did not demand as a pre-agreement condition that the child be brought up as a Moslem. But they wanted her to be "exposed to the teachings of the Ismaili sect of the Moslem religion when she reaches the age of seven—the age of reason according to the Moslem religion."

Just before Crum gave this outline, Miss Hayworth was quoted by a spokesman as saying she wouldn't sell her daughter's right to be raised as an American and a Christian.

Ike Voices Peace Hope On Jewish New Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon expressed hopes for peace today in new year's greetings to Americans of Jewish faith.

Sundown services at synagogues and temples ushered in the Jewish new year 5714. The Rosh Hashanah, or day of judgment, opens a 10-day period of spiritual inventory for Jews that culminates in Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

Three Cleveland Newsmen Are Convicted Of Contempt

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9 (AP)—Three members of the Cleveland Press' editorial staff were convicted of contempt of court late today by Common Pleas Judge Joseph H. Silbert.

The case involved the taking of a photograph in Judge Silbert's courtroom after the judge had told one of the defendants no pictures would be allowed.

The photograph, taken on Aug. 20 and published the same day, showed former probate Judge Nelson J. Brewer being arraigned on a charge of embezzlement.

The three men, and the penalties imposed by Judge Silbert were: City Editor Louis Clifford, fined $500 and costs, and sentenced to the custody of the sheriff for one hour.

Reporter Sam Giaimo, fined $100 and costs.

Photographer James Thomas, fined $100, suspended.

Attorney Tom J. Edwards, general counsel for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, said the case will be appealed.

In returning his decision, Judge Silbert said, "It was open defiance." He said if the defendants felt there was an invasion of freedom of the press, they could have proceeded "in an orderly way" by filing a writ of prohibition.

Asked for comment, Clifford referred the question to Louis B. Seltzer, Editor of the Press. Seltzer commented:

"All I can say is that it was to be expected that the judge who cited us for contempt and acted as judge, jury and prosecutor, would, in self defense, find us guilty.

"We feel that the principle involved is so important we are going to carry it to the higher courts."

U. S. Serviceman Held In Death Of Airman

GREAT YARMOUTH, England, Sept. 9 (AP) — A young American service man was detained today in connection with the killing of a Colorado airman, Milton O. Martinez Jr.

He was being held by U. S. authorities who declined to release his name. It was disclosed that he was stationed at Bentwaters jet fighter station, near Ipswich.

Martinez, who comes from Alamosa, Colorado, was beaten to death while weekending in the resort. He was an airman second class and was attached to the U. S. 85th Bomber Squadron in nearby Sculthorpe.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—A showdown neared tonight on whether movie actress Rita Hayworth will approve a divorce settlement from Prince Aly Khan.

Her attorney, Bartley Crum, flew here from Paris today amid a maze of conflicting statements concerning the agreement.

He said he would fly on tonight to Las Vegas, Nev., where the film star has been visiting singer Dick Haymes, her next husband-to-be.

Crum told newsmen at Idlewild Airport that this was the picture:

1. The agreement called for Aly to set up a one million dollar trust fund for his and Miss Hayworth's 3-year-old daughter, Yasmin.

2. Nothing in the agreement would prevent Miss Hayworth from bringing the child up as an American.

3. Aly and his father, the Aga Khan, did not demand as a pre-agreement condition that the child be brought up as a Moslem. But they wanted her to be "exposed to the teachings of the Ismaili sect of the Moslem religion when she reaches the age of seven—the age of reason according to the Moslem religion."

Just before Crum gave this outline, Miss Hayworth was quoted by a spokesman as saying she wouldn't sell her daughter's right to be raised as an American and a Christian.

Ike Voices Peace Hope On Jewish New Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP) — President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon expressed hopes for peace today in new year's greetings to Americans of Jewish faith.

Sundown services at synagogues and temples ushered in the Jewish new year 5714. The Rosh Hashanah, or day of judgment, opens a 10-day period of spiritual inventory for Jews that culminates in Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

Three Cleveland Newsmen Are Convicted Of Contempt

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9 (AP)—Three members of the Cleveland Press' editorial staff were convicted of contempt of court late today by Common Pleas Judge Joseph H. Silbert.

The case involved the taking of a photograph in Judge Silbert's courtroom after the judge had told one of the defendants no pictures would be allowed.

The photograph, taken on Aug. 20 and published the same day, showed former probate Judge Nelson J. Brewer being arraigned on a charge of embezzlement.

The three men, and the penalties imposed by Judge Silbert were: City Editor Louis Clifford, fined $500 and costs, and sentenced to the custody of the sheriff for one hour.

Reporter Sam Giaimo, fined $100 and costs.

Photographer James Thomas, fined $100, suspended.

Attorney Tom J. Edwards, general counsel for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, said the case will be appealed.

In returning his decision, Judge Silbert said, "It was open defiance." He said if the defendants felt there was an invasion of freedom of the press, they could have proceeded "in an orderly way" by filing a writ of prohibition.

Asked for comment, Clifford referred the question to Louis B. Seltzer, Editor of the Press. Seltzer commented:

"All I can say is that it was to be expected that the judge who cited us for contempt and acted as judge, jury and prosecutor, would, in self defense, find us guilty.

"We feel that the principle involved is so important we are going to carry it to the higher courts."

State Police Report 1,625 Traffic Arrests Over Labor Day Weekend

PIKESVILLE, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—State Police reported today they made 1,625 traffic violation arrests on Maryland highways over the long Labor Day weekend.

Sixteen persons were killed during that period.

The accident records showed the troopers investigated 36 smashups in which persons were injured and another 122 in which there were more than superficial property damage.

They also investigated seven of the fatal accidents, the others being in the hands of city and county authorities.

Besides the 1,625 arrests, the troopers warned 2,472 motorists who were driving improperly.

Maj. William H. Weber, field force commander of the department, estimated his men travelled 111,557 miles in patrolling the highways in the 79-hour period from 5 p.m. last Friday to midnight Monday night.

Troopers were not allowed to take leave or vacation during that period, so there would be a full force on patrol.

The major said:

"We still were undermanned, even though the men were working 14 to 20 hours a day. Ours is a one-shift department, because we have insufficient personnel. We tried but failed to have the Legislature approve funds for additional appointments.

"Other states that okayed additions to their highway patrols showed a drop in traffic fatalities over the weekend. I believe we could have done the same thing if the last Legislature had approved funds to take on more personnel."

Weber estimated the fatal accidents alone will cost $1,300,000 in doctor and hospital bills, insurance claims, damage verdicts, vehicle repairs, and time lost from work.

East German Reds Go On Hunger Strike

HANNOVERSCH - MUENDEN, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP)—A group of 456 young East German Communists, arrested as they entered West Germany to sabotage last Sunday's elections, were on a hunger strike today demanding their release.

West German officials said the youngsters probably would be set free in a day or two to return to East Germany.

Eight other young Communist aents, however, decided not to go back to East Germany after getting their first look at life in the free West. They asked for asylum in West Germany.

Forgotten Order Gives Hagerstown Cops Extra $8,000

HAGERSTOWN, Sept. 9 (AP)—The cops of this city will take the cash, thank you.

It turns out that they each have up to 17 days off or premium pay coming for holidays worked since May, 1951.

A forgotten order of that date by the mayor and city council turned up the other day. None of the policemen had been aware they were entitled to holiday pay or an extra day off.

Chief J. B. Brown didn't know. So a delegation of policemen went before the city council and asked. Sure enough, the order issued almost two and a half years ago included the policemen with other city employes.

Chief Brown polled the department's members. They all want the back pay, rather than time off. It will cost the city about $8,000.

U. S., Spain May Sign Pacts In Three Weeks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Diplomatic officials said today the United States and Spain tentatively plan to sign a series of military and economic aid agreements within the next three weeks.

One of the clauses would give American defense forces the right to use selected Spanish air and naval bases to help protect Europe against possible Communist aggression.

Bids On Highway Projects Opened

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Williams Construction Co., Inc., of Middle River submitted the apparent low bid of $1,354,080 for building another section 3¾ miles long for the Washington National Pike in Montgomery County.

The stretch of dual highway, with wide dividing parkway, runs from the Brink-Germantown Road (Maryland Route 118) to a point just south of the Clarksburg Road (Maryland Route 121).

The W. E. Graham Construction Co. of Cleveland, N. C., was next low bidder on the job at $1,406,914. Ten other bids ran as high as $1,569,150.

E. D. Plummer and Sons of Chambersburg, Pa., with the high bid on the National Pike job, submitted the lowest figure on another project—$281,391 for overhauling a three-mile stretch of the Cedar Grove - Damascus Road, Maryland Route 27, in Montgomery County.

Probe Of Rosewood School, Penal Institutions Ordered

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Maryland's legislative council today set up a special committee to investigate conditions at Rosewood State Training School, the House of Correction and Maryland Penitentiary.

State Senate President George W. Della, presiding officer of the Legislative Council, proposed the inquiry.

The Rosewood school is for care and treatment of mental defectives, most of them children who failed to develop but some of them oldsters with the mental age of children.

Della said he had a letter from U. S. Sen. John Marshall Butler relaying a woman's complaint about the treatment of her grandson at Rosewood. The parents of the child contribute $50 a month to his care. They reported they found him strapped to a crib and filthy.

The inquiry was expanded to include the two penal institutions on the suggestion of Sen. D. Kenneth McLaughlin of Washington County.

McLaughlin said he had heard the House of Correction, just off the Washington-Baltimore boulevard at Jessups, "is in a mess."

Della said he had visited all the penal institutions and found them overcrowded. Prison authorities could not be held entirely to blame, he said, because they do not have the room or the facilities for handling inmates.

Hide a slice of onion between two thin hamburger patties, pinch the ends together, and broil or pan-fry. The result will be tasty onion-stuffed hamburgers.

The New England shilling was the first coin issued in the United States by the colonists.

Two Military Lessons

Somebody has said that the A-frame—the device that makes it possible for a Chinese or Korean coolie to carry heavy burdens on his back—proved to be an answer, in Korea, to the bomber. In refutation it will be pointed out that, if U. S. bombers had been permitted to range farther, the story might have been different. But the remark has some point.

Air power still has limitations. The U. S. had air superiority at all times and air supremacy most of the time, but was unable to defeat enemy land forces in battle. Bombers could not cut off their front-line troops from their supply bases nor stop the movement of personnel.

Working by night, taking advantage of camouflage, the Communists managed to maintain themselves in the field despite all the bombs free-ranging—up to the Yalu River, that is—U. S. planes could drop on their lines of communication, supply depots and front-line installations.

The war demonstrated that the airplane is not the answer to the supply problem, either. It never has been, but some enthusiasts talk as if it would be if given a chance. But there are figures to show that ships moved 700,000 tons of supplies from this country to Korea monthly, whereas air transport—though used on an unprecedented scale — transported only 60,000 tons a year from Japan and 3,000 tons a month from the United States.

There are many military lessons to be drawn from the Korean War, but these are of the highest importance. The nation that made the mistake of relying on the bomber to win a shooting war on land, or of expecting air transport to supply its land armies fighting far away, could go down to defeat to an inferior foe.

An Honest Dollar

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey expressed himself with less than his usual care the other day after he used the phrase "honest money" and was asked by a New Deal reporter to define it. Speaking off the cuff, he said that honest money meant that a dollar would be worth as much next year as it is worth now.

This sounds good. Nobody who has a dollar he doesn't plan to spend right away wants to see it shrink. But the fact is that all currencies fluctuate in purchasing power and no sure way has been devised to prevent it.

Governments should make a reasonable effort to prevent excessive fluctuations, up or down, which unjustly transfer wealth from one segment of the population to another. As stable a currency as is practicable helps maintain as stable an economy as possible. But it is a near certainty that the dollar will be worth somewhat more, or somewhat less, a year from now than it is today.

If the government tries to make it worth exactly the same, the result will be a "managed currency." To this, there is no doubt, Mr. Humphrey is strongly opposed. So he would have done better to define an honest dollar merely as one which, despite moderate fluctuations up and down, maintains a fairy level purchasing power over the years.

Know Your Neighbors

How many persons do you know by name? Full name, that is, complete with initial—not as Jim or Tom or "Slim" or "Shorty." Recently a resident here had occasion to introduce his next-door neighbor, whom he had known for several years, and called him Jones when his name is Smith.

The fact is that few big city dwellers actually know their neighbors. To correctly name those who reside in the same apartment house, to say nothing of those in the block, is a feat few can accomplish.

How about those you work with—men or women in the same office or department? Or those you meet reguarly at the club? It would be a worthy project to proclaim a get-acquainted week, starting with the neighbors. In smaller communities everybody knows everybody else, or nearly everybody, all of which makes for friendliness.

It has been asserted the ability to remember names is a special gift. This is a false conclusion. Some people do not remember names because they do not make the effort. Newspaper men know there is no quicker way to offend a person than to get his name wrong, or misspell it. A memory course is not needed to obviate the embarrassment of getting Jones and Smith mixed. All that is required is a little concentration.

Money Talks

The burglary alarm in the cash section of the U. S. Treasury building in Washington went off with a resounding clamor the other afternoon. Apparently after that events resembled a Chinese fire drill.

But after the vaults had all been locked and guards with cocked rifles had moved quietly in to do in the robbers, somebody sheepishly owned up to having tripped the alarm by mistake.

This leaves us with one random thought and also an idea for a skit. We are pleased to know that there is some actual cash lying around the joint. As to the skit: Two guards (or make it a platoon if the stage is big) steal up to a Treasury vault and shout sternly: "Who's in there?"

Voice from vault: "Nobody here but us millions, boss!"

Cost-Conscious

From Yellowstone Park and Colorado Springs, two of the nation's most popular tourist meccas, comes news that no new marks will be set by number of visitors this year, for the first year since gasoline rationing was removed at the end of World War II. Some observers predict that tourist figures for 1952 will not be broken next year either.

The reason, of course, is the inflated cost of touring. Prices of meals and lodging have risen year by year so that today in most instances these are 50 per cent higher than the figures of five years ago. Many persons seem to have decided that the fun of touring comes too high.

A Dimpled Spine

A small cyst(pilonidal) at the base of the spine made the jeep famous or vice versa. Soldiers harboring these lesions never had been bothered until they rode one of these open jobs and hit the bumps. The ensuing trauma was enough to start an infection that continued to act up until the cyst was removed surgically.

Pilonidal cyst results from a defect acquired long before birth. In the embryonic stage a trough in the area of the spine is covered gradually with skin and other tissues. But closure is incomplete in those who are destined to develop pilonidal cyst. There remains as a remnant a dimple, or pocket of skin, at the base of the spine which forms at a point where the tip of the canal formerly was attached to the skin. The pocket, or cyst, may contain hair or other tissues. The defect is present for many years but so long as the condition remains quiescent the owner is unaware of its existence.

This type of cyst would have gone begging for recognition if it were located in a different place. But at the base of the spine, it is subject to trauma every time the person hits a bump when riding in a jeep or a car with hard seats. The lesion also is imperiled whenever the individual is kicked, paddled, of falls down while skating. Furthermore, the overlying skin is subject to infection because the area is poorely aerated. Hence infection occurs ultimately and the skin becomes red, swollen, and tender to the touch.

At this stage pain is severe; it is difficult to sit and when sleeping, the victim is awakened whenever he rolls over on the back. There is little to do but apply heat and have the abcess opened by the family physician. Comfort follows the escape of pus, which relieves tension. Once the lesion has been infected and pus oozes out, a drainage tract is established that never disappears spontaneously. Consequently, the underwear and bed linen are soiled periodically with a few drops of pus unless the part is covered with a bandage. Drainage is the lesser of two evils, however, because when the opening closes so that the pus cannot escape a painful abscess forms.

Surgical removal of the entire tract offers the best chance for permanent recovery. The operation usually is delayed until infection is at a minimum and to help along this line the antibiotics such as penicillin and terramycin are used. The surgical procedure requires patience and skill because every bit of the cyst must be removed for complete cure. Unless this is done, the condition recurs. Many surgeons also leave the wound open so that the space where the cyst existed will fill in gradually with normal tissue. This is one of the reasons why healing is a slow process and may take from six weeks to three months.

ADHESIONS FROM INFLAMMATION

R. F. writes: Could inflammation of the appendix cause adhesions even if operation was not performed?

REPLY

Yes. Adhesions represent scar tissue and like scars on the skin can follow injury, surgery, or inflammation.

ANEMIA AND PINWORMS

Mrs. J. writes: Do pinworms cause anemia?

REPLY

No. These critters have been blamed for many childhood disorders but they rarely do more than irritate the rectal area, which may interfere with sleep.

HOT FOOD

D. E. writes: I like to drink my coffee and eat my food real hot. Will this damage my stomach in time?

REPLY

No.

CLUBBED FINGERS

D. W. writes: Do club fingers denote anything?

REPLY

They are noted frequently in individuals suffering from congenital heart disease and certain lung disorders.

NOT COMPULSORY

Mrs. Y. writes: My elderly mother has a lump in her left armpit. She absolutely refuses to see a doctor. Am I justified in using force to make her receive medical attention?

REPLY

No. No one is required to have medical attention against his or her wishes except sick children and persons with infections or diseases which might jeopardize the health and safety of others. Furthermore, you can lead a horse to water but cannot make him drink and even it you forced your mother to consult a physician, he would be powerless to insist that treatment be carried out.

Chief Justice Vinson Was First To Oppose Giving Atom Secrets To Russia; Vinson Was Proudest Of His Price-Control Achievement

WASHINGTON—Here are some fleeting glimpses in the life of a very great man who died this week.

I was on a camping trip in the Adirondacks with Chief Justice Vinson about a month ago. The woods around us were dry. We were seated on pine-needles eating lunch one day, and the chief justice was smoking a cagaret. He smoked it down to a stub, crushed the stub on a rock, then went over to the water bucket and threw water on the burnt-out stub.

I couldn't help thinking that this was typical of Fred Vinson's life—thoughtful, considerate, careful even about the most minute detail.

One evening he told about a historic cabinet meeting dealing with the atom bomb. The meeting is history now and there's no reason why it can't be described. It took place in 1945. Truman was President, Vinson was secretary of the Treasury, Henry L. Stimson was secretary of War. Stimson came into the cabinet meeting to propose that Russia be given the atom bomb.

He argued that Russia was certain to get the secret anyway, and our chances of world peace would be far better if we showed our good will and sincerity by offering to share our secret with the Soviet. Our relations with Russia, incidentally, were far better at that time than a year or so later.

Cabinet Debate

The Stimson proposal touched off a heated debate.

President Truman went round the cabinet table, asked the opinions of all present. Jimmie Byrnes, secretary of State, sided with Stimson. So did Miss Perkins, secretary of Labor. But Vinson led the opposition. He argued that the secret of the A-Bomb was something the American people had paid for, worked for, had a right to keep. Under no circumstances should it be given away.

Tom Clark, then attorney general, backed him up. He argued, Vinson said, from the point of view of the people of Texas and how they would feel if the A-bomb secret were given away.

Secretary Stimson obviously had given great thought to the matter, Vinson said. He spoke with the utmost sincerity. Furthermore he spoke as a former secretary of State. President Truman postponed decision, but in the end ruled that the atom secrets should be kept.

Cleaned-Out Communist

One of the most memorable talks I ever had with Vinson was a few weeks after he became secretary of the Treasury. I had been working on one of the most important news stories I ever broke, the Soviet spy ring in Canada, and told Vinson that I thought he had either a Communist or a pro-Communist working for him as assistant secretary of the Treasury, Harry D. White.

I told Vinson I had no evidence that would stand up in court, but that I was certain one of the men the Russians used as their contact in Washington was White. Vinson didn't say much. But in the next week or two I noted that White left the Treasury. Some years later his part in the Soviet spy ring was substantiated.

Misson To Moscow

The story of Vinson's proposed trip to Moscow in the fall of 1948 has been written a good many times, but some of the most important angles were never told.

It is known, of course, that President Truman wanted the chief justice to make a personal face-to-face appeal to Stalin for peace between the two nations. Truman felt that a man with the warm, contagious personality of Fred Vinson, plus his down-to-earth directness and homey philosophy, would be able to melt even the stony heart of Joe Stalin.

Vinson himself was not enthusiastic. He had misgivings about the mission, doubted that he could bring back any real agreement. But like the good soldier he had always been, he agreed to go if Truman so desired.

However, he insisted that if he did go, he must resign from the Supreme Court and not be reappointed. So strongly did Vinson feel that the court must be divorced from the executive branch of the government that he was willing to sacrifice the second most important post in the United States. It was partly because of this insistence, I think, that Truman abandoned the mission-to-Moscow idea. He thought it would be unfair to his old friend Fred Vinson.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Rats

In every large body of men there are slick, tricky persons who try to find small advantages for themselves at the expense of others. In the Korean War, these jobbers of influence were correctly nicknamed "rats," although that seems to be too polite a term.

What our sons suffered at their hands in Korea is only now coming out. They spied on other American soldiers. They advised the Koreans and the Chinese Communists how to force Americans to sign statements. They squealed on Americans who spoke unfavorably of Communism and the Russians.

Now some of the rats are being protected from the natural desire of our boys to teach them a lesson. It seems altogether unnecessary. It would help the rats to understand the morals of our race if the boys were permitted to beat them up, to dunk them in the ocean, to make them salute the American flag for hours on end. A little vengeance goes a long way with a rat.

But what our military should do is to court-martial the rats under any articles they find and then to publish the findings, including the names of these villains. We ought to have their names. Their photographs should be published, particularly in their local communities, so that all men may know who they are and what they did to other Americans, fighting in a foreign land, 6,000 miles from home. We ought to spew them out as we do anything foul.

In the Korean War, there is another kind of indecent, disgusting, foul-smelling creature called, "A Progressive." He is an American soldier, including some officers, who were Communists when they were conscripted, or who became Communists in prison camps. Some of them became Communists because it gave them advantages; others because they believe that Russia will conquer the world and they want to be among the conquerors. Some of them have become addicts of the gospel of Karl Marx.

There are those who fall for the assumption that the Russians accomplish all this by brain-washing; that is by a propagandistic method which removes from a man's mind all his earlier knowledge and beliefs and turns him into an abnormal monster who serves the Russian without will.

I do not go along with this theory, except in isolated instances during which drugs are used to destroy the will. So far, little evidence has been adduced to justify the charge of brain-washing by drugs of our sons. It is easier to accomplish with weak-willed creatures by a better bed, by access to women, by extra food. We need not grow too fanciful on the subject, it is sufficient that these so-called Americans have joined the enemies of our country and have done their bidding.

Some of these Progressives have chosen to remain in North Korea, in Communist China and even in Soviet Russia. Technically, they are missing persons. Sooner or later, and perhaps this has already been done, the Government of the United States should have an authentic list of American prisoners-of-war who formally stated their preference not to return to the United States.

That list should be given the most widespread publicity. Americans ought to know who these Progressives are, where they come from, what their background was. They ought to know why these people hate their own country.

This is something that has never happened before. It is perhaps true that in World War I and World War II some Americans were missing because they shacked up with native women and got lost. In the Korean War, it is altogether different. These are prissoners of war who are asked to express a choice: Do you want to go home to your own country or do you refuse to go home?

And they made their choice. They prefer to remain in a slave civilization rather than to return to their native land, to their families, to their own. It is almost impossible to believe that such persons exist in the American society; yet, we have witnessed the Hollywood Ten, the Trial of the Eleven in Foley Square, the Trial of the Second String Communist leaders, the Alger Hiss case, the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg case, etc. We know that even here at home, we have both rats and Progressives and just perverted traitors.

And what we have at home, we have in our Army.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—No one has been appointed chief justice in the last half century who has not had previous judicial experience either on the Supreme Court itself or on the federal bench.

Thus President Eisenhower would be breaking precedent if he appointed to the highest court in the land anyone who has not been familiar with the complicated problems of procedure which confront the chief justice not only on the highest court but in dealing with the lower courts.

Nor has the selection of a chief justice always been made from the political party of the incumbent President.

It will be recalled that when Chief Justice Melvin Fuller died in 1910, President William Howard Taft, Republican, promoted to chief justice a Democrat who had been a senator from Louisiana and had served as a Confederate soldier—Edward Douglas White—and then filled the vacancy by appointing Willis Van Devanter, a Republican, as an associate justice.

Taft Served As Jurist

It will be recalled also that, when Chief Justice White died, President Harding appointed ex-President Taft, who had served on the federal bench for many years before coming to Washington as secretary of War in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt.

When President Hoover had an opportunity to appoint a chief justice to succeed Mr. Taft, he selected Charles Evans Hughes, who had served for six year as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

When Mr. Hughes retired in 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt did not appoint a Democrat but elevated Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, a Republican, who had served as attorney general in the Coolidge cabinet before being appointed to the Supreme Court in 1925.

When in 1946 President Truman was confronted with a vacancy in the chief justiceship due to the death of Mr. Stone, Mr. Truman selected Fred Vinson, who had given up his life tenure as a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals judge to take a wartime post in the government.

So, in every case for the last 50 years, the President has sought someone with judicial experience, and in two instances out of five in the last half century the selection for chief justice has not been of the same political party as the man in the White House.

Looking over the present Supreme Court, the logical man for President Eisenhower to elevate—if he chooses a Democrat—is Justice Robert H. Jackson, who was appointed to the Supreme Court in June 1941 at the same time that President Roosevelt selected a Republican, Mr. Stone, for chief justice.

Justice Jackson is, with the exception of Justices Douglas, Clark and Black, the youngest on the bench now, and is known as a middle-of-the-roader in the sense that he has seemed to veer away from the extreme views held by either the so-called conservatives or radicals on the present court.

Justice Jackson is believed to have been in the forefront for appointment by President Truman when it was reported to the latter that the feud on the court at that time could only be resolved by bringing in someone from the outside. He then appointed Judge Vinson.

Dewey, Brownell Have Refusal

If President Eisenhower should elevate a Democrat from the present bench—Justice Reed would be another good choice if his health were better—the way would be opened to the appointment of a new man as an associate justice. It would be in order then to select a Republican. The name of Governor Warren of California has been prominently mentioned, but it is believed that first refusal would go to Governor Dewey of New York and next to Attorney General Brownell.

It is interesting to recall that Charles Evans Hughes, Republican, resigned in 1910 from the governorship of the State of New York to go to the Supreme Court. It is known that Mr. Dewey could have been in the Eisenhower cabinet but did not wish to give up the governorship. He had a bigger part in helping Mr. Eisenhower get to the White House than did Governor Warren. The California governor never did switch his delegation to help either Taft or Eisenhower at the 1952 Republican National Convention. But it is true that President Eisenhower thinks highly of Governor Warren, and so does Governor Dewey, who ran with him in 1948 on the Republican National ticket.

Mr. Brownell may prefer to stay on a while as attorney general and possibly accept the next vacancy on the Supreme Court, but it is quite probable that, whether or not President Eisenhower elevates a present justice to the top post, the new face on the court will be one of these three men — Governor Dewey or Governor Warren or Attorney General Brownell.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Operation Candor

WASHINGTON

After interminable wavering, the Eisenhower administration has at last decided to tell the country some of the truth about the national situation. The decision was taken before the Kremlin tested its first hydrogen bomb, but this event has further strengthened the hands of the advocates of "Operation Candor," as the project is called in the Administration's inner circle.

The President will do the talking. The time, the place and the medium are now under discussion. The method most favored at the moment is an informal television talk, or perhaps a combination of a television talk with a full dress radio speech.

Such is the final upshot of a debate that has been going on inside the American government since the final period of the Truman administration. Certain officials of the old psychological strategy board were the first to insist that it was dangerous to keep the country in ignorance of the threat to national survival implicit in the steadily growing Soviet air-atomic capabilities. They were also the first to argue that a frank White House briefing was the only way to get the truth across the country.

Hence the problem was on the National Security Council table, so to speak, when President Eisenhower took office. Active discussion of "Operation Candor" began as early as mid-winter. In the spring, at least one major meeting of the National Security Council was devoted to the subject: and Drs. J. Robert Oppenheimer and Vannevar Bush were invited on this occasion to make the case for being candid.

None the less, the wavering continued into mid-summer. And even now, there are certain leading members of the Administration who hope that the Security Council decision—for such it is—may yet be reversed.

The argument most often used by the opponents of frankness is the highly specious one, "that the country knows everything but the real military secrets already." It is true, of course, that the real national situation is well understood by a small number of persons who have struggled to find out. It is also true that some of these persons have done their best to make the hard facts more widely understood.

But this is not only specious; it is also irrelevant. The country as a whole does not yet understand the national situation, because the country's leaders have thus far persisted in concealing or misrepresenting the hard facts known to the experts. In difficult and unpleasant technical matters, the country does not listen to every chance voice. The country's leaders must inform the country, and no one else can do so.

The proof of this has just been given, in dramatic form, by the inquiring Dr. Gallup. The experts know very well that the Soviet Union already possesses the atomic bombs for a crippling attack on this country. They know also that the Soviet long range air army is entirely capable of delivering the bombs. They know further that unless drastic measures are taken to improve our air defenses, the Kremlin will be able to make a totally devastating air-atomic attack on the United States within 18 to 24 months.

But the country at large plainly does not know about all this. In fact when Dr. Gallup's pollsters asked their victims whether they thought their cities could be destroyed by Soviet atomic bombs, less than a third thought there was much risk. In short three quarters of the people of the United States are living in a dream of false security.

Those who have wished this dangerous dream to be prolonged fall into three categories. There are the neurotic advocates of "maximum security," common in the Pentagon and now gaining ground at the Atomic Energy Commission, there are the State Department officials —George F. Kennan used to be one of them—who fear that the American people will demand all kinds of dangerous and impulsive remedies if they are told the plain truth. Finally, there are the high Administration officials who think high taxes are more dangerous than atomic bombs.

This last group is of particular importance. They think that if the truth is told, a strong demand will immediately be felt for heavier defense outlays on air defense and for other purposes. In this they are undoubtedly correct.

Maybe the promised Presidential candor will not be so very candid after all. But if he is fully candid, it can be taken as certain that the current approach to defense problems will no longer be tolerated. And it is hard to believe that the decision to be candid does not imply a further decision to make a different approach to defense.

Two Military Lessons

Somebody has said that the A-frame—the device that makes it possible for a Chinese or Korean coolie to carry heavy burdens on his back—proved to be an answer, in Korea, to the bomber. In refutation it will be pointed out that, if U. S. bombers had been permitted to range farther, the story might have been different. But the remark has some point.

Air power still has limitations. The U. S. had air superiority at all times and air supremacy most of the time, but was unable to defeat enemy land forces in battle. Bombers could not cut off their front-line troops from their supply bases nor stop the movement of personnel.

Working by night, taking advantage of camouflage, the Communists managed to maintain themselves in the field despite all the bombs free-ranging—up to the Yalu River, that is—U. S. planes could drop on their lines of communication, supply depots and front-line installations.

The war demonstrated that the airplane is not the answer to the supply problem, either. It never has been, but some enthusiasts talk as if it would be if given a chance. But there are figures to show that ships moved 700,000 tons of supplies from this country to Korea monthly, whereas air transport—though used on an unprecedented scale—transported only 60,000 tons a year from Japan and 3,000 tons a month from the United States.

There are many military lessons to be drawn from the Korean War, but these are of the highest importance. The nation that made the mistake of relying on the bomber to win a shooting war on land, or of expecting air transport to supply its land armies fighting far away, could go down to defeat to an inferior foe.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey expressed himself with less than his usual care the other day after he used the phrase "honest money" and was asked by a New Deal reporter to define it. Some observers predict that tourist figures for 1952 will not be broken next year either.

The reason, of course, is the inflated cost of touring. Prices of meals and lodging have risen year by year so that today in most instances these are 50 per cent higher than the figures of five years ago. Many persons seem to have decided that the fun of touring comes too high.

There is little to do but apply heat and have the abcess opened by the family physician. Comfort follows the escape of pus, which relieves tension. Once the lesion has been infected and pus oozes out, a drainage tract is established that never disappears spontaneously. Consequently, the underwear and bed linen are soiled periodically with a few drops of pus unless the part is covered with a bandage. Drainage is the lesser of two evils, however, because when the opening closes so that the pus cannot escape a painful abscess forms.

Surgical removal of the entire tract offers the best chance for permanent recovery. The operation usually is delayed until infection is at a minimum and to help along this line the antibiotics such as penicillin and terramycin are used. The surgical procedure requires patience and skill because every bit of the cyst must be removed for complete cure. Unless this is done, the condition recurs. Many surgeons also leave the wound open so that the space where the cyst existed will fill in gradually with normal tissue. This is one of the reasons why healing is a slow process and may take from six weeks to three months.

ADHESIONS FROM INFLAMMATION

R. F. writes: Could inflammation of the appendix cause adhesions even if operation was not performed?

REPLY

Yes. Adhesions represent scar tissue and like scars on the skin can follow injury, surgery, or inflammation.

ANEMIA AND PINWORMS

Mrs. J. writes: Do pinworms cause anemia?

REPLY

No. These critters have been blamed for many childhood disorders but they rarely do more than irritate the rectal area, which may interfere with sleep.

HOT FOOD

D. E. writes: I like to drink my coffee and eat my food real hot. Will this damage my stomach in time?

REPLY

No.

CLUBBED FINGERS

D. W. writes: Do club fingers denote anything?

REPLY

They are noted frequently in individuals suffering from congenital heart disease and certain lung disorders.

NOT COMPULSORY

Mrs. Y. writes: My elderly mother has a lump in her left armpit. She absolutely refuses to see a doctor. Am I justified in using force to make her receive medical attention?

REPLY

No. No one is required to have medical attention against his or her wishes except sick children and persons with infections or diseases which might jeopardize the health and safety of others. Furthermore, you can lead a horse to water but cannot make him drink and even if you forced your mother to consult a physician, he would be powerless to insist that treatment be carried out.

Chief Justice Vinson Was First To Oppose Giving Atom Secrets To Russia; Vinson Was Proudest Of His Price-Control Achievement

WASHINGTON—Here are some fleeting glimpses in the life of a very great man who died this week.

I was on a camping trip in the Adirondacks with Chief Justice Vinson about a month ago. The woods around us were dry. We were seated on pine-needles eating lunch one day, and the chief justice was smoking a cagaret. He smoked it down to a stub, crushed the stub on a rock, then went over to the water bucket and threw water on the burnt-out stub.

I couldn't help thinking that this was typical of Fred Vinson's life—thoughtful, considerate, careful even about the most minute detail.

One evening he told about a historic cabinet meeting dealing with the atom bomb. The meeting is history now and there's no reason why it can't be described. It took place in 1945. Truman was President, Vinson was secretary of the Treasury, Henry L. Stimson was secretary of War. Stimson came into the cabinet meeting to propose that Russia be given the atom bomb.

He argued that Russia was certain to get the secret anyway, and our chances of world peace would be far better if we showed our good will and sincerity by offering to share our secret with the Soviet. Our relations with Russia, incidentally, were far better at that time than a year or so later.

The Stimson proposal touched off a heated debate.

President Truman went round the cabinet table, asked the opinions of all present. Jimmie Byrnes, secretary of State, sided with Stimson. So did Miss Perkins, secretary of Labor. But Vinson led the opposition. He argued that the secret of the A-Bomb was something the American people had paid for, worked for, had a right to keep. Under no circumstances should it be given away.

Tom Clark, then attorney general, backed him up. He argued, Vinson said, from the point of view of the people of Texas and how they would feel if the A-bomb secret were given away.

Secretary Stimson obviously had given great thought to the matter, Vinson said. He spoke with the utmost sincerity. Furthermore he spoke as a former secretary of State. President Truman postponed decision, but in the end ruled that the atom secrets should be kept.

Cleaned-Out Communist

One of the most memorable talks I ever had with Vinson was a few weeks after he became secretary of the Treasury. I had been working on one of the most important news stories I ever broke, the Soviet spy ring in Canada, and told Vinson that I thought he had either a Communist or a pro-Communist working for him as assistant secretary of the Treasury, Harry D. White.

I told Vinson I had no evidence that would stand up in court, but that I was certain one of the men the Russians used as their contact in Washington was White. Vinson didn't say much. But in the next week or two I noted that White left the Treasury. Some years later his part in the Soviet spy ring was substantiated.

Misson To Moscow

The story of Vinson's proposed trip to Moscow in the fall of 1948 has been written a good many times, but some of the most important angles were never told.

It is known, of course, that President Truman wanted the chief justice to make a personal face-to-face appeal to Stalin for peace between the two nations. Truman felt that a man with the warm, contagious personality of Fred Vinson, plus his down-to-earth directness and homey philosophy, would be able to melt even the stony heart of Joe Stalin.

Vinson himself was not enthusiastic. He had misgivings about the mission, doubted that he could bring back any real agreement. But like the good soldier he had always been, he agreed to go if Truman so desired.

However, he insisted that if he did go, he must resign from the Supreme Court and not be reappointed. So strongly did Vinson feel that the court must be divorced from the executive branch of the government that he was willing to sacrifice the second most important post in the United States. It was partly because of this insistence, I think, that Truman abandoned the mission-to-Moscow idea. He thought it would be unfair to his old friend Fred Vinson.

The Rats

In every large body of men there are slick, tricky persons who try to find small advantages for themselves at the expense of others. In the Korean War, these jobbers of influence were correctly nicknamed "rats," although that seems to be too polite a term.

What our sons suffered at their hands in Korea is only now coming out. They spied on other American soldiers. They advised the Koreans and the Chinese Communists how to force Americans to sign statements. They squealed on Americans who spoke unfavorably of Communism and the Russians.

Now some of the rats are being protected from the natural desire of our boys to teach them a lesson. It seems altogether unnecessary. It would help the rats to understand the morals of our race if the boys were permitted to beat them up, to dunk them in the ocean, to make them salute the American flag for hours on end. A little vengeance goes a long way with a rat.

But what our military should do is to court-martial the rats under any articles they find and then to publish the findings, including the names of these villains. We ought to have their names. Their photographs should be published, particularly in their local communities, so that all men may know who they are and what they did to other Americans, fighting in a foreign land, 6,000 miles from home. We ought to spew them out as we do anything foul.

In the Korean War, there is another kind of indecent, disgusting, foul-smelling creature called, "A Progressive." He is an American soldier, including some officers, who were Communists when they were conscripted, or who became Communists in prison camps. Some of them became Communists because it gave them advantages; others because they believe that Russia will conquer the world and they want to be among the conquerors. Some of them have become addicts of the gospel of Karl Marx.

There are those who fall for the assumption that the Russians accomplish all this by brain-washing; that is by a propagandistic method which removes from a man's mind all his earlier knowledge and beliefs and turns him into an abnormal monster who serves the Russian without will.

I do not go along with this theory, except in isolated instances during which drugs are used to destroy the will. So far, little evidence has been adduced to justify the charge of brain-washing by drugs of our sons. It is easier to accomplish with weak-willed creatures by a better bed, by access to women, by extra food. We need not grow too fanciful on the subject, it is sufficient that these so-called Americans have joined the enemies of our country and have done their bidding.

Some of these Progressives have chosen to remain in North Korea, in Communist China and even in Soviet Russia. Technically, they are missing persons. Sooner or later, and perhaps this has already been done, the Government of the United States should have an authentic list of American prisoners-of-war who formally stated their preference not to return to the United States.

That list should be given the most widespread publicity. Americans ought to know who these Progressives are, where they come from, what their background was. They ought to know why these people hate their own country.

This is something that has never happened before. It is perhaps true that in World War I and World War II some Americans were missing because they shacked up with native women and got lost. In the Korean War, it is altogether different. These are prissoners of war who are asked to express a choice: Do you want to go home to your own country or do you refuse to go home?

And they made their choice. They prefer to remain in a slave civilization rather than to return to their native land, to their families, to their own. It is almost impossible to believe that such persons exist in the American society; yet, we have witnessed the Hollywood Ten, the Trial of the Eleven in Foley Square, the Trial of the Second String Communist leaders, the Alger Hiss case, the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg case, etc. We know that even here at home, we have both rats and Progressives and just perverted traitors.

And what we have at home, we have in our Army.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—No one has been appointed chief justice in the last half century who has not had previous judicial experience either on the Supreme Court itself or on the federal bench.

Thus President Eisenhower would be breaking precedent if he appointed to the highest court in the land anyone who has not been familiar with the complicated problems of procedure which confront the chief justice not only on the highest court but in dealing with the lower courts.

Nor has the selection of a chief justice always been made from the political party of the incumbent President.

It will be recalled that when Chief Justice Melvin Fuller died in 1910, President William Howard Taft, Republican, promoted to chief justice a Democrat who had been a senator from Louisiana and had served as a Confederate soldier—Edward Douglas White—and then filled the vacancy by appointing Willis Van Devanter, a Republican, as an associate justice.

Taft Served As Jurist

It will be recalled also that, when Chief Justice White died, President Harding appointed ex-President Taft, who had served on the federal bench for many years before coming to Washington as secretary of War in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt.

When President Hoover had an opportunity to appoint a chief justice to succeed Mr. Taft, he selected Charles Evans Hughes, who had served for six year as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

When Mr. Hughes retired in 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt did not appoint a Democrat but elevated Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, a Republican, who had served as attorney general in the Coolidge cabinet before being appointed to the Supreme Court in 1925.

When in 1946 President Truman was confronted with a vacancy in the chief justiceship due to the death of Mr. Stone, Mr. Truman selected Fred Vinson, who had given up his life tenure as a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals judge to take a wartime post in the government.

So, in every case for the last 50 years, the President has sought someone with judicial experience, and in two instances out of five in the last half century the selection for chief justice has not been of the same political party as the man in the White House.

Looking over the present Supreme Court, the logical man for President Eisenhower to elevate—if he chooses a Democrat—is Justice Robert H. Jackson, who was appointed to the Supreme Court in June 1941 at the same time that President Roosevelt selected a Republican, Mr. Stone, for chief justice.

Justice Jackson is, with the exception of Justices Douglas, Clark and Black, the youngest on the bench now, and is known as a middle-of-the-roader in the sense that he has seemed to veer away from the extreme views held by either the so-called conservatives or radicals on the present court.

Justice Jackson is believed to have been in the forefront for appointment by President Truman when it was reported to the latter that the feud on the court at that time could only be resolved by bringing in someone from the outside. He then appointed Judge Vinson.

Dewey, Brownell Have Refusal

If President Eisenhower should elevate a Democrat from the present bench—Justice Reed would be another good choice if his health were better—the way would be opened to the appointment of a new man as an associate justice. It would be in order then to select a Republican. The name of Governor Warren of California has been prominently mentioned, but it is believed that first refusal would go to Governor Dewey of New York and next to Attorney General Brownell.

It is interesting to recall that Charles Evans Hughes, Republican, resigned in 1910 from the governorship of the State of New York to go to the Supreme Court. It is known that Mr. Dewey could have been in the Eisenhower cabinet but did not wish to give up the governorship. He had a bigger part in helping Mr. Eisenhower get to the White House than did Governor Warren. The California governor never did switch his delegation to help either Taft or Eisenhower at the 1952 Republican National Convention. But it is true that President Eisenhower thinks highly of Governor Warren, and so does Governor Dewey, who ran with him in 1948 on the Republican National ticket.

Mr. Brownell may prefer to stay on a while as attorney general and possibly accept the next vacancy on the Supreme Court, but it is quite probable that, whether or not President Eisenhower elevates a present justice to the top post, the new face on the court will be one of these three men — Governor Dewey or Governor Warren or Attorney General Brownell.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Operation Candor

WASHINGTON

After interminable wavering, the Eisenhower administration has at last decided to tell the country some of the truth about the national situation. The decision was taken before the Kremlin tested its first hydrogen bomb, but this event has further strengthened the hands of the advocates of "Operation Candor," as the project is called in the Administration's inner circle.

The President will do the talking. The time, the place and the medium are now under discussion. The method most favored at the moment is an informal television talk, or perhaps a combination of a television talk with a full dress radio speech.

Such is the final upshot of a debate that has been going on inside the American government since the final period of the Truman administration. Certain officials of the old psychological strategy board were the first to insist that it was dangerous to keep the country in ignorance of the threat to national survival implicit in the steadily growing Soviet air-atomic capabilities. They were also the first to argue that a frank White House briefing was the only way to get the truth across the country.

Hence the problem was on the National Security Council table, so to speak, when President Eisenhower took office. Active discussion of "Operation Candor" began as early as mid-winter. In the spring, at least one major meeting of the National Security Council was devoted to the subject: and Drs. J. Robert Oppenheimer and Vannevar Bush were invited on this occasion to make the case for being candid.

None the less, the wavering continued into mid-summer. And even now, there are certain leading members of the Administration who hope that the Security Council decision—for such it is—may yet be reversed.

The argument most often used by the opponents of frankness is the highly specious one, "that the country knows everything but the real military secrets already." It is true, of course, that the real national situation is well understood by a small number of persons who have struggled to find out. It is also true that some of these persons have done their best to make the hard facts more widely understood.

But this is not only specious; it is also irrelevant. The country as a whole does not yet understand the national situation, because the country's leaders have thus far persisted in concealing or misrepresenting the hard facts known to the experts. In difficult and unpleasant technical matters, the country does not listen to every chance voice. The country's leaders must inform the country, and no one else can do so.

The proof of this has just been given, in dramatic form, by the inquiring Dr. Gallup. The experts know very well that the Soviet Union already possesses the atomic bombs for a crippling attack on this country. They know also that the Soviet long range air army is entirely capable of delivering the bombs. They know further that unless drastic measures are taken to improve our air defenses, the Kremlin will be able to make a totally devastating air-atomic attack on the United States within 18 to 24 months.

But the country at large plainly does not know about all this. In fact when Dr. Gallup's pollsters asked their victims whether they thought their cities could be destroyed by Soviet atomic bombs, less than a third thought there was much risk. In short three quarters of the people of the United States are living in a dream of false security.

Those who have wished this dangerous dream to be prolonged fall into three categories. There are the neurotic advocates of "maximum security," common in the Pentagon and now gaining ground at the Atomic Energy Commission, there are the State Department officials—George F. Kennan used to be one of them—who fear that the American people will demand all kinds of dangerous and impulsive remedies if they are told the plain truth. Finally, there are the high Administration officials who think high taxes are more dangerous than atomic bombs.

This last group is of particular importance. They think that if the truth is told, a strong demand will immediately be felt for heavier defense outlays on air defense and for other purposes. In this they are undoubtedly correct.

Maybe the promised Presidential candor will not be so very candid after all. But if he is fully candid, it can be taken as certain that the current approach to defense problems will no longer be tolerated. And it is hard to believe that the decision to be candid does not imply a further decision to make a different approach to defense.

Laniel Cracks Down On French Tax Dodgers

PARIS, Sept. 9 (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel's government said today it is beginning to crack down on most insolent of the millions of French tax dodgers—those with yachts, luxury cars and servant-staffed villas.

To back up the assertion it is really doing something about tax evasion, estimated to deprive the treasury of 600 billion francs ($1,700,000,000) a year, the government cited three fraud cases in which it has gained 35,800,000 francs ($102,345.79).

The figures suggest a long job is ahead.

Similarly, last week the government announced it was seriously striking at those many Frenchmen who have stashed away fortunes abroad and pay no taxes on this wealth.

The government said it had uncovered 500 such cases totaling undeclared capital of 30 billion francs ($85,714,200). But this, too, is a drop in the bucket compared to the estimated total of 600 billion francs hidden abroad.

Unlike the custom in most democratic countries, the French government has announced no names in the fraud cases. And, unlike most countries, France has no law prescribing jail for nonpayment of taxes—just fines.

While hitting at the obviously rich, the government seemed to be making another gesture of appeasement towards the working masses who have severely criticized France's time-honored practice of tax dodging.

But Laniel's regime, like previous French Cabinets, has as yet made no gesture toward getting tough with the nation's farm families—one third of the population.

Of the eight million politically powerful French farmers, only 80,000 reported they made any profit last year.

It is estimated that only 3,800,000 Frenchmen bother to pay income taxes. Of this number, 75 per cent have no choice for they are wage earners whose salaries are reported by their employers to the Finance Ministry.

Last year, in one of the richest countries in Western Europe, only 2,000 persons declared incomes of two million francs ($5,700) or more, whereas France is full of Frenchmen giving such external signs of wealth as owning a big American automobile—on which they have paid 57 per cent customs tax—and gasoline which they buy at 67 cents a gallon.

Previous governments have made periodic, half-hearted gestures at doing something about France's antiquated tax system, but none has gotten very far. Premier Antoine Pinay announced such plans last year, then dropped them when the howls arose.

Either because of the French temperament or the political situation which has long prevented the country from having a strong government that could take firm action, France has substituted a system of indirect taxes for income taxes, for example, a 50 cent tax on gasoline.

Spot Check Shows County School Enrollment Is Up

A check of a cross section of seven public schools shows an increase in enrollment over last year's total in five of them, with a decrease in two.

At Fort Hill High School, it was reported the enrollment Tuesday hit 1,910, a marked increase from last year's registration of 1806.

According to the census conducted by the Board of Education last year, the anticipated enrollment at Fort Hill was estimated at 1,995 students.

Allegany High School's figures were not complete, with one official census was 965.

reporting students in classes numbered between 1,450 and 1,500. However, this will be an increase over the 1,446 total of last year.

The census estimates predicted Allegany would have in the neighborhood of 1,580 students.

At West Side, there are in school today 449 pupils. The enrollment last year was 425 with the anticipated total this year set at 480.

Beall High School at Frostburg had a first-day total Tuesday of 902 students. Last year the enrollment was 939. The anticipated number from the results of the

At Cresaptown Junior High School, only three more students were reported in the Seventh Grade and Eighth Grade than last year, 206 to 203. The anticipated enrollment was 214.

In Cresaptown Elementary School 541 first-day pupils enrolled. Of the 268 in the first three grades, 115 were first graders. The anticipated enrollment at this school was 596. Last year it was 546.

Pennsylvania Avenue School's exact total was not available for the elementary grades, but it was learned the number in school was not nearly as high as anticipated. Last year the enrollment there in Grades One through Six was 546.

LaVale School, which is a fast developing section, had a first day enrollment that was slightly greater than that figured in the census statistics.

In classes the first day there were 387 pupils. The prediction for 1953-54 terms was 381. Last year, the total was 340 at LaVale.

These figures reported will all change this week as students are constantly turning up each morning from extended vacations, etc.

Friday will be the first official enrollment report to the Board of Education by the school principals.

Youth Hurts Leg Playing Basketball

Paul Washington, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Washington, Banneker Homes, Frederick Street, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital Tuesday for an injury to his right leg, suffered while playing basketball at the Carver Playground.

Pin Removed From Lung Of Area Youth

Ten-year-old John Shoup Jr., showed up for classes at Cresaptown School's Fifth Grade Tuesday right on time.

But for a period last week his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shoup Sr., of 208 Oakwood Avenue, of Cresaptown, had some mighty uneasy moments about the oldest of their four sons.

It seems last week John Jr. was using his water squirt gun to shoot straight pins. The pins were placed in the end and propelled by the force of the liquid.

Forgetting himself, he squirted himself in the mouth, apparently to "wet his taster," but in went the pin.

With a gulp, his mother reported, he sucked the pin down his throat.

John Jr. became alarmed and told his parents, who took him immediately to a local physician.

X-rays at Memorial Hospital the following morning (Tuesday) located the pin in his right lung. The physician advised immediate removal of the object.

Arrangements were made in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and that evening John Jr. was admitted there.

His father, a research investigator at Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation, accompanied him to the hospital.

John Jr. had to be taken to Baltimore where Johns Hopkins has a very expensive piece of equipment, a bronchoscope.

This is a narrow tubular instrument equipped with a small electric lamp which may be passed through the trachea into the large bronchi for inspection or for removal of foreign bodies.

For three hours Wednesday, John Jr., fully conscious so he could cooperate with the specialist, was worked on.

At first the specialists attempted to extricate the small pin with a magnet on the end of the bronchoscope, but there was not enough attraction to pick it up.

Then, through the use of the instrument, suction was used to successfully take the pin from his lung.

John Jr. and his father wanted to bring the pin home, but the hospital authorities kept it for another item in the collection of objects removed from children's lungs.

The day after the extrication, John Jr. and his father returned home, with the boy apparently all right, except for the memory of three hours spent during the operation.

Mrs. Shoup described her ordeal as: "I lost three pounds walking the floor for two days and nights."

So Tuesday, John Jr. was one of the Fifth Graders at Cresaptown School who could brag about "my operation" and a whale of a climax for his summer vacation.

Kiwanis To Hear Hall

Ivan Hall, former production superintendent at Goodyear Engineering Corporation, will be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club today at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA.

His subject will be "Constructive Destruction."

Water Use Increased During Heat Wave

The hot weather of last week was reflected by a considerable increase in consumption of city water, according to the report of C. R. Brotemarkle, Lake Gordon Water Plant superintendent.

For five days, Sunday through Thursday when the temperatures daily hit 100 degrees and over, the water plant metered over 16,000 000 gallons a day. Saturday it simmered off to 14,510,000 gallons and then dropped to 13,690,000 on Sunday.

The average daily usage during the seven days of last week was 15,722,000 gallons as compared to 13,231,000 daily average for the similar period last summer.

Total used during last week was 110,410 000 gallons as compared to 92,630,000 gallons the same week last year.

Hot weather brings more call for water for watering lawns, refrigeration and air conditioning, drinking and bathing, to mention a few uses.

Cumberland's two dams have not been affected too much by the drought that ended Saturday. The level of Lake Gordon is seven inches below the spillway and Lake Koon, ten feet.

Will Build Home

John E. Powers, 216 Valley Street, secured a permit yesterday to build a one-story home at 165 Holland Street. The structure will be of brick faced concrete block, 38 by 28 feet and will cost about $7,000.

Health Department Schedules Clinics

The Health Department has scheduled six clinics this week.

They include Child Hygiene conferences yesterday in Westernport, today at 9 a. m. in Lonaconing and 10 a. m. in Frostburg, and Friday at 10 a. m. in Midland and at 9:30 a. m. in Potomac Park.

A Chest clinic will be held Friday from 9 a. m. to noon, by appointment.

CONCRETE STREETS Save Taxpayers Money
Repairing or rebuilding streets costs money—and Mr. Taxpayer, it's done with your money. Concrete streets save you money because concrete is the pavement with the lowest maintenance cost.
Initial cost of a street is only the "down payment"—it's the "annual installment" for maintenance and repair, including periodic treatment and resurfacing, payable over the lifetime of the pavement, that makes the difference between an economical facility and one that is burdensome to own.
Hundreds of cities have found that concrete streets have the lowest maintenance cost. It has been shown, where detailed records have been kept, that "dirt" streets are the most expensive and concrete the least costly over the years. Costs of other types of surfaces range between these two with some street pavements costing up to five times as much as concrete over the same number of years.
You will ultimately pay for good streets——why not tell your City officials that you want them now?

Aged Maysville Man Is Found Dead In Field

Leslie Rizer Keplinger, 81 of Maysville, W. Va., well known retired farmer and carpenter, was found dead in a field on his farm last evening at about 7 o'clock (EST). Death was attributed to a heart attack.

According to Sheriff Carl Weimer and Coroner H. E. J. Oates of Petersburg, W. Va., who investigated, Mr. Keplinger had been accompanying a surveying party earlier in the day. A survey was being made of part of his farm which he considered selling.

When he failed to return for his evening meal, his sons started searching for him. He was found dead in a field near his house by a son Virgil Keplinger who summoned authorities.

Mr. Keplinger was a native of Maysville, W. Va., born November 19, 1871, a son of the late John and Celia Keplinger. He is survived by his widow Denia (Muntzing) Keplinger, two daughters, Mrs. Clara Sage, Maysville and Mrs. Gussie Schillingberer, Romney; three sons, Virgil, Herman and John Keplinger; a brother Arthur A. Keplinger all of Maysville and 10 grandchildren.

Lawmakers Plan Control Bill On Election Spending

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Maryland lawmakers today heard proposals for tightening up on election campaign financing.

A committee of the Legislative Council mapped the changes in Maryland's Corrupt Practices Act. The proposals are aimed at limiting election expenditures and contributions and preventing deficit financing of campaigns.

The proposals are contained in a review of the state election laws recommended by a special council-appointed committee headed by State Sen. Crothers (D-Cecil).

A hearing before the full council is scheduled for Oct. 14. Boards of election supervisors throughout the state will be invited as will other interested groups.

Although the bill would limit individual campaign contributions, there would be no ceiling on total receipts and expenditures.

Among other things, the changes would limit contributions and expenditures by major candidates and members of their immediate families and put a lid on campaign contributions by individuals.

In addition:

The number of election-day helpers would be controlled as would the amount paid them.

Each campaign treasurer would have to name a bank where contributions would be held and disbursed only by check, draft or order.

Certain major candidates would have to file an itemized statement of contributions and expenditures by the Friday preceding an election and after that time no contributions could be received.

There also would be new definitions of contributions and expenditures aimed at making the law more readily enforceable.

Maryland now has some limitations on campaign contributions and expenditures but it is argued they are not effective.

In addition to proposing changes in the election laws, the committee also called for reorganizing the laws with related sections grouped under proper headings.

The recodification was undertaken mainly to simplify and put into more readable and understandable form those laws now on the books.

The proposed bill would limit candidates for state-wide offices or United States senator to expenditures totaling $10,000. The limit for candidates for Congress would be $5,000.

Election-day workers would be limited to two per candidate for each polling place in a primary at a fee of not more than $15 each. For special and general elections the limit would be six per party for each polling place, also with a $15 maximum.

The Rains Came In Time To Save Most Md. Crops

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—The heavy rains which broke the heat wave over the weekend may have revived burned pastures and restored several crops Maryland farmers were beginning to despair over.

The state's crop observers, in their weekly report on conditions as of last Friday, said the dry spell caused some damage to corn, soybeans, pastures, tomatoes, lima beans and apples.

It was favorable to tobacco and hay.

The report said the hot, dry period came late enough so there was no widespread drought damage, although soybean and baby lima crops suffered blossom drop. Corn, especially in the shallower hill soils and in Cecil County, deteriorated somewhat and ripened more rapidly than normal.

Late truck crops were hurt, but the greatest harvest volume was past. Fall plowing was held up by dry soil conditions.

Observers saw a good chance the weekend rains would be of some help to the late baby lima crop and it apparently will be a big help for apples in Western Maryland, where the harvest is expected to begin in volume this week.

Dr. Thomas To Be Speaker During Baptist Revival Here

Guest evangelist during a revival next week at Grace Baptist Church, 213 Greene Street, will be Dr. Clifton C. Thomas, D.D. of Baltimore.

Dr. Thomas is general secretary of the Maryland Baptist Union Association, and will bring evangelistic messages to those who attend.

Special music, Rev. Keefe added, will also be played with singing by the congregation. Every member of the church is urged to attend.

Potomac Valley Edges Kegs, 3-2, Phillips Fans 17

Opening County Loop Tilt Goes 10 Innings

A walk to Bob McKenzie with the bases loaded in the 10th inning forced home the winning run as Potomac Valley's Cubs edged the Hercules Powder Kegs in a extra-inning thriller at Penn Avenue field in the opening game of the County Softball League final playoffs.

Ken Carder, who hooked up with Hayden Phillips of the Cubs, in a tense mound duel that was finished under the lights, allowed only four hits, but seven walks proved his undoing as three came in the home half of the 10th to give Phillips the nod.

Although touched for eight scattered hits, Phillips was virtually unbeatable in the clutch yielding single runs in the first and fifth frames, the latter unearned. Altogether the Cubs' ace righthander struck out 17 enemy batsmen.

Ed Cecil opened the winning 10th for the Cubs by working Carder for his fifth pass. Following Don Lease's fly to center, Lou Wilson strolled. With two out Pete Cecil's short single loaded the sacks to set the stage for the deciding pass to McKenzie.

Lou Baker paced Hercules attack against Phillips with two doubles and single while Stony Jackson smashed a first inning homerun. Johnny Cox also collected a two-bagger for the losers.

Bee Scarpelli and Gib Lease each cracked out two-base hits for the Cubs.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played at Penn Avenue at 6 p.m. Friday. The score:

COP CHAIR CHAMPIONSHIP — The Fraternal Order of Eagles softball team captured the Rocking Chair Softball League championship yesterday with a 4-0 victory over defending titlists, Amvets, to gain the Old Germans trophy and possession of the large bat symbolizing victory in the loop. Members of the victorious Eagles are FRONT ROW — Sylvia Jean Martin and Janet Lynn Riehl, bat girls, Chet Collins, Jim Rice, Pete Elliott, Jimmy Jones, bat boy, Jim Kienhofer, Allan Sheetz and Lou Riehl. BACK ROW — Elmer Lashley, Jim Fradiska, Jack Kauffman, Chug Aman, Doyle George, Ernest Painter, Ralph Twigg, Robert Hobell and Manager Fritz Palmer. The Eagles won the final game of a best-of-five series.

Win Decides Title In Chair Playoffs

Al Sheetz, slender righthander whose clutch pitching in the Rocking Chair playoffs of past seasons was the terror of the loop, once more came through yesterday as he tossed a one-hitter and blanked the Amvets to give the Fraternal Order of Eagles the Chair championship, 4-0, at Stitcher Field.

In the final game of the best of five series for the league title, Sheetz was virtually untouchable, yielding only a scratch hit to Clay Ingram, Amvets manager whose bounding ball got by Doyle George at second base for the hit that spoiled a no-hit effort. Sheetz walked only two and struck out three. He faced but 24 men in the seven-inning contest.

The two teams had battled even in the first four games before the Eagles set down the defending champion Amvets to annex the large bat which symbolizes victory title in the Rocking Chair League. The Eagles will also receive the Old Germans trophy as crown bearers for the 1953 softball season.

The Eagles actually sewed up the contest with a pair of tallies in the second inning when Sheetz and Jack Kauffman singled to open the frame and the former came home on Chet Collins' long fly to center. Chug Aman's one-base blow brought Kauffman home.

In the third a walk to Sheetz, single by Kauffman and a costly muff of an easy fly ball in right by Johnny Diamond accounted for another Eagles run.

The fourth score came across the plate on Jim Kienhofer's base on balls, a sacrifice by George and Pete Elliott's line drive hit to center.

Elliott and Kauffman paced the Eagles at the plate with two bingles apiece as over 1,000 persons witnessed the well-played contest.

The score:

Gaffney and Ingram. Sheetz and Riehl.

Michigan State, Buckeyes Loom Midwest's Best

Jim Ruehl Among Four After OSU Center Job

BY PATRICK JOYCE

CHICAGO, Sept 9 (INS)—Most coaches seem agreed that the college football power this year in the midwest is centered in Michigan State and Ohio State in the Big 10, and in Notre Dame among the independents.

Jim Ruehl

Michigan State admittedly lost some of its stars through graduation but the Spartans still loom as a powerhouse in their first formal season of conference grid competition.

They have not lost a game since they were beaten by Maryland early in 1950. Over almost three complete seasons they have piled up a 24-game winning streak.

MSC has crafty Tom Yewcic back as passing quarterback. His backfield mates include such standouts as Leroy Bolden, Billy Wells and Evan Slonac.

Don Dohoney, the crashing end, is another returnee. So are such stalwarts as linebacker Jim Neal, guard Bob Reniff and Safety man Jim Ellis. A formidable corps of sophomores should fill any gaps the Spartans suffered through graduation.

Notre Dame Has Veterans

Notre Dame, wrecker of rival conference champions, will be throwing some seasoned veterans into action this year. The Irish, like most teams, are trying to take the elimination of the two-platoon system in stride.

In this regard, Coach Frank Leahy is more fortunate than most coaches because his two backfield stars, John Lattner, All-America candidate, and Fullback Neil Worden played both offense and defense last year.

Joe Heap, an excellent pass receiver and an expert in kickoff and punt returns, is another backfield veteran.

Notre Dame has a veteran line which outcharged and outfought most of its strong opponents last season.

Ohio State, with the brilliant John Borton at quarterback, has enough talent to go all the way to the Big 10 title this year—with a few breaks. Borton is one of the nation's top passers and ball carriers.

The Buckeyes have a versatile backfield, including Hoppy Cassady and Jerry Harkrader, two breakaway runners.

Ruehl Seeks Center Post

Lathrum's, Jimmy's Windup Series Today

Lathrum's Grocery and Jimmy's Market will play 1½ innings today at 6 o'clock at Stitcher Field to determine the championship of the High School Division of the City Rec Softball League.

Darkness halted the finale of the series last Friday in the last of the sixth inning with Lathrum's at bat and leading by the score of 6-2 with none out.

Lathrum's won the opener, 13-7, and Jimmy's took the second game, 6-4.

There were 82,500 seamen employed on U. S. ocean-going ships in early 1953 — about 25 per cent fewer than the same period in 1952.

PVC Changes System — "Fats" Arnold Dies — Maryland Bans Spurs — A "Tip" To Catchers

By C. V. BURNS

FOOTBALL TEAMS of the Potomac Valley Conference will operate under a new rating system this fall.

Under the new regulation adopted in February, a tie counts a half game won and a half game lost. The number of games won is to be divided by the number of games played. A maximum of five games may be used in computing percentages, with all losses counting.

A school must play a minimum of four games to qualify for the conference championship.

Last year Keyser High School won the title under a rule that provided two points for a win, one point for a tie and no points for a loss. Total points were divided by total number of games played and the team having the highest average of points was declared champion.

Keyser's record was 5-0-1 for eleven points and an average of 1.83. Romney's mark was 4-0-1 for nine points and an average of 1.80. The teams played a 14-14 tie when they met in the final game of the season.

If the present rules were in effect last year Keyser still would have won with an average of .917 to Romney's .900.

MARYLAND racegoers no longer find the familiar WBS in the equipment column of the past performance sheets. It always has meant whip, blinkers and spurs, but now the racing officials have ruled against the use of spurs.

Joseph Flanagan, state steward, says the Maryland Racing Commision plans to outlaw the use of spurs at all Maryland tracks, and until the rule becomes effective, stewards at each track merely ban such equipment. The ban started at the recent Hagerstown meeting.

Prior to the new ruling, many leading horsemen had discarded spurs voluntarily. Often in the past track crowds were sickened by the sight of a horse returning to the unsaddling ring with their sides bleeding after the cruel use of sharpened steels.

Flanagan says the majority of riders did not know how to use them to any advantage and they generally did more harm than good.

THE DEATH of Ray E. Arnold, 60, at Wheeling last week marked the passing of one of Cumberland's best known sport fans.

Arnold was a barber for many years and was employed by Jesse Hopcraft in the "Terrific Twenties" when the latter's barber shop on North Liberty Street was Cumberland's main sporting headquarters. Other well known sports-minded tonsorial artists employed at the same shop in those days were Vic Ricker, the boxing promoter, now operating the Fort Cumberland Hotel Barber Shop, Ernie Carr, Tom McGreevy and Guy Shircliffe.

More popularly known as "Fats," Arnold was a ticket seller for many years in the pari-mutuel department at many of the major and minor race tracks. He first worked under Mortimer J. Mahony, whose son Riggs is now director of wagering at several tracks.

Arnold was a native of Elk Garden, W. Va. Final rites were held Saturday in Fairmont.

FORT HILL High School will embark on its 1953 football campaign Friday with the distinction of having played 60 consecutive games without being shut out.

The last time the Sentinels were blanked was in 1946 when Ridgeley battled the Hilltoppers to 0-0 deadlock.

DIDJA KNOW that Dick McElwee's Romney High School Pioneers of 1950, undefeated and tied once in ten games, hold the all-time scoring record for grid teams of the tri-state area.

They rolled up 376 points and in the nine games they won they scored 32 or more points.

The tie game was a scoreless affair from Moorefield.

MICKEY COCHRANE, former major league catcher, who handled the slants of Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and other topnotch pitchers, never suffered a broken finger and his right hand is unmarred after a lengthy career.

Most catchers are disabled sometime during the season because of broken fingers.

Cochrane's trick was keeping his right hand closed in a fist, loosely, and he never opened his right-hand fist until the baseball was in the glove on his left hand.

BROOKLYN'S Dodgers are expected to win over 100 games this season but did you know that in 1942 they won 104 games and finished second to the St. Louis Cardinals who bagged 106 victories?

A GRID FAN writes and wants to know the records of local teams coached by Herman Ball and William P. Hahn.

Ball coached at Allegany High seven years (1936-1942) and his teams won 54, lost 13 and tied one.

Hahn's 8-year record at Fort Hill is 67-7-4. During his first seven seasons Hahn's teams won 56, lost 5 and tied 4.

Dancer Primed For 4 Stakes

Appears Recovered From Foot Bruises

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—A tentative fall program calling for Native Dancer to start in four more races this year was mapped today, with a possibility the 3-year-old champ might retire still up in the air.

The Dancer, apparently fully recovered from foot bruises, galloped a mile and one half this morning. Trainer Bill Winfrey said he planned to breeze him three-eighths of a mile tomorrow in his first real effort in about two weeks.

Although the main objective of the moment is the $50,000 Sysonby Mile at Belmont Park Sept. 26, Winfrey looked ahead to the rest of the fall stakes schedule.

The Dancer, beaten only once in his 19-race career, will get his first taste of older horses in the Sysonby when he meets Tom Fool, Greentree Stable's great handicap star who is unbeaten this year.

Races which Winfrey has in mind for the Dancer are the Sysonby, followed by the $75,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Oct. 10; $50,000 Pimlico Special at Baltimore Oct. 24; and the $75,000 Empire Gold Cup at Jamaica Oct. 31.

Kiner's Homer Sinks Bucs 8-7

Chicago Cubs Win Sixth Straight

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP) — Ralph Kiner's three run ninth inning homer, his 31st of the season, carried the Chicago Cubs to an 8-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before the smallest Wrigley Field crowd of the season—a scant 2,319 paid.

The Cubs set the stage for Kiner's game-winning smack as Eddie Miksis survived on Danny O'Connell's second error and Randy Jackson's sharp single to center.

Kiner waited for Elroy Face's 2 and 1 pitch to drive the ball into the left field seats.

The victory was the Cubs' sixth straight. Kiner's wallop also assured Tom Simpson, a rookie right hander, his first major league triumph. Simpson, fifth and last Chicago pitcher in the bold Bucs' 15-hit attack, pitched a three up, three down ninth.

Cubs Buy Hurler From Farm Club

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today announced the purchase of Don Elston, 24-year-old right handed pitcher, from their Springfield, Mass., farm team in the International League.

The six foot, 180 pound Elston, who has been in the Chicagoans' farm system since 1948, pitched eighth place Springfield to a 1-0 victory over Baltimore last night for his eighth triumph against 16 losses.

Michigan State, Buckeyes Loom Midwest's Best

Jim Ruehl Among Four After OSU Center Job

BY PATRICK JOYCE

CHICAGO, Sept 9 (INS)—Most coaches seem agreed that the college football power this year in the midwest is centered in Michigan State and Ohio State in the Big 10, and in Notre Dame among the independents.

Jim Ruehl

Michigan State admittedly lost some of its stars through graduation but the Spartans still loom as a powerhouse in their first formal season of conference grid competition.

They have not lost a game since they were beaten by Maryland early in 1950. Over almost three complete seasons they have piled up a 24-game winning streak.

MSC has crafty Tom Yewcic back as passing quarterback. His backfield mates include such standouts as Leroy Bolden, Billy Wells and Evan Slonac.

Don Dohoney, the crashing end, is another returnee. So are such stalwarts as linebacker Jim Neal, guard Bob Reniff and Safety man Jim Ellis. A formidable corps of sophomores should fill any gaps the Spartans suffered through graduation.

Notre Dame Has Veterans

Notre Dame, wrecker of rival conference champions, will be throwing some seasoned veterans into action this year. The Irish, like most teams, are trying to take the elimination of the two-platoon system in stride.

In this regard, Coach Frank Leahy is more fortunate than most coaches because his two backfield stars, John Lattner, All-America candidate, and Fullback Neil Worden played both offense and defense last year.

Joe Heap, an excellent pass receiver and an expert in kickoff and punt returns, is another backfield veteran.

Notre Dame has a veteran line which outcharged and outfought most of its strong opponents last season.

Ohio State, with the brilliant John Borton at quarterback, has enough talent to go all the way to the Big 10 title this year—with a few breaks. Borton is one of the nation's top passers and ball carriers.

The Buckeyes have a versatile backfield, including Hoppy Cassady and Jerry Harkrader, two breakaway runners.

Ruehl Seeks Center Post

Lathrum's, Jimmy's Windup Series Today

Lathrum's Grocery and Jimmy's Market will play 1½ innings today at 6 o'clock at Stitcher Field to determine the championship of the High School Division of the City Rec Softball League.

Darkness halted the finale of the series last Friday in the last of the sixth inning with Lathrum's at bat and leading by the score of 6-2 with none out.

Lathrum's won the opener, 13-7, and Jimmy's took the second game, 6-4.

There were 82,500 seamen employed on U. S. ocean-going ships in early 1953 — about 25 per cent fewer than the same period in 1952.

PVC Changes System — "Fats" Arnold Dies

Maryland Bans Spurs — A "Tip" To Catchers

By C. V. BURNS

FOOTBALL TEAMS of the Potomac Valley Conference will operate under a new rating system this fall.

Under the new regulation adopted in February, a tie counts a half game won and a half game lost. The number of games won is to be divided by the number of games played. A maximum of five games may be used in computing percentages, with all losses counting.

A school must play a minimum of four games to qualify for the conference championship.

Last year Keyser High School won the title under a rule that provided two points for a win, one point for a tie and no points for a loss. Total points were divided by total number of games played and the team having the highest average of points was declared champion.

Keyser's record was 5-0-1 for eleven points and an average of 1.83. Romney's mark was 4-0-1 for nine points and an average of 1.80. The teams played a 14-14 tie when they met in the final game of the season.

If the present rules were in effect last year Keyser still would have won with an average of .917 to Romney's .900.

MARYLAND racegoers no longer find the familiar WBS in the equipment column of the past performance sheets. It always has meant whip, blinkers and spurs, but now the racing officials have ruled against the use of spurs.

Joseph Flanagan, state steward, says the Maryland Racing Commision plans to outlaw the use of spurs at all Maryland tracks, and until the rule becomes effective, stewards at each track merely ban such equipment. The ban started at the recent Hagerstown meeting.

Prior to the new ruling, many leading horsemen had discarded spurs voluntarily. Often in the past track crowds were sickened by the sight of a horse returning to the unsaddling ring with their sides bleeding after the cruel use of sharpened steels.

Flanagan says the majority of riders did not know how to use them to any advantage and they generally did more harm than good.

THE DEATH of Ray E. Arnold, 60, at Wheeling last week marked the passing of one of Cumberland's best known sport fans.

Arnold was a barber for many years and was employed by Jesse Hopcraft in the "Terrific Twenties" when the latter's barber shop on North Liberty Street was Cumberland's main sporting headquarters. Other well known sports-minded tonsorial artists employed at the same shop in those days were Vic Ricker, the boxing promoter, now operating the Fort Cumberland Hotel Barber Shop, Ernie Carr, Tom McGreevy and Guy Shircliffe.

More popularly known as "Fats," Arnold was a ticket seller for many years in the pari-mutuel department at many of the major and minor race tracks. He first worked under Mortimer J. Mahony, whose son Riggs is now director of wagering at several tracks.

Arnold was a native of Elk Garden, W. Va. Final rites were held Saturday in Fairmont.

FORT HILL High School will embark on its 1953 football campaign Friday with the distinction of having played 60 consecutive games without being shut out.

The last time the Sentinels were blanked was in 1946 when Ridgeley battled the Hilltoppers to 0-0 deadlock.

DIDJA KNOW that Dick McElwee's Romney High School Pioneers of 1950, undefeated and tied once in ten games, hold the all-time scoring record for grid teams of the tri-state area.

They rolled up 376 points and in the nine games they won they scored 32 or more points.

The tie game was a scoreless affair from Moorefield.

MICKEY COCHRANE, former major league catcher, who handled the slants of Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and other topnotch pitchers, never suffered a broken finger and his right hand is unmarred after a lengthy career.

Most catchers are disabled sometime during the season because of broken fingers.

Cochrane's trick was keeping his right hand closed in a fist, loosely, and he never opened his right-hand fist until the baseball was in the glove on his left hand.

BROOKLYN'S Dodgers are expected to win over 100 games this season but did you know that in 1942 they won 104 games and finished second to the St. Louis Cardinals who bagged 106 victories?

A GRID FAN writes and wants to know the records of local teams coached by Herman Ball and William P. Hahn.

Ball coached at Allegany High seven years (1936-1942) and his teams won 54, lost 13 and tied one.

Hahn's 8-year record at Fort Hill is 67-7-4. During his first seven seasons Hahn's teams won 56, lost 5 and tied 4.

Appears Recovered From Foot Bruises

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP)—A tentative fall program calling for Native Dancer to start in four more races this year was mapped today, with a possibility the 3-year-old champ might retire still up in the air.

The Dancer, apparently fully recovered from foot bruises, galloped a mile and one half this morning. Trainer Bill Winfrey said he planned to breeze him three-eighths of a mile tomorrow in his first real effort in about two weeks.

Although the main objective of the moment is the $50,000 Sysonby Mile at Belmont Park Sept. 26, Winfrey looked ahead to the rest of the fall stakes schedule.

The Dancer, beaten only once in his 19-race career, will get his first taste of older horses in the Sysonby when he meets Tom Fool, Greentree Stable's great handicap star who is unbeaten this year.

Races which Winfrey has in mind for the Dancer are the Sysonby, followed by the $75,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Oct. 10; $50,000 Pimlico Special at Baltimore Oct. 24; and the $75,000 Empire Gold Cup at Jamaica Oct. 31.

Kiner's Homer Sinks Bucs 8-7

Chicago Cubs Win Sixth Straight

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP) — Ralph Kiner's three run ninth inning homer, his 31st of the season, carried the Chicago Cubs to an 8-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before the smallest Wrigley Field crowd of the season—a scant 2,319 paid.

The Cubs set the stage for Kiner's game-winning smack as Eddie Miksis survived on Danny O'Connell's second error and Randy Jackson's sharp single to center.

Kiner waited for Elroy Face's 2 and 1 pitch to drive the ball into the left field seats.

The victory was the Cubs' sixth straight. Kiner's wallop also assured Tom Simpson, a rookie right hander, his first major league triumph. Simpson, fifth and last Chicago pitcher in the bold Bucs' 15-hit attack, pitched a three up, three down ninth.

Keyser Council Hears Discussion Of B&O Crossing

Railroad Proposes Flashing Lights

KEYSER—D. A. Steele, grade crossing engineer for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, spent two hours with Mayor John C. Freeland and members of Council Wednesday discussing the railroad crossings in Keyser, especially the main link between the north side and the business district, Main Street.

Steele told the city officers that the B&O would like to give grade crossing protection in a modern way, through installation of gates and automatic flashing lights. The gates as well as the lights will be completely automatic around the clock for 24 hours daily for protection generally.

He asked the city's approval for the change that will provide protection at a cost of $20,000 for the railroad and no expense to the city.

Similar protection, he explained is now in operation in a number of cities and towns on the B&O system including Oakland, which was visited this week by Mayor Freeland and Councilman Paul Peters, for the purpose of seeing the operation. While at Oakland, the two local men discussed the gates with business men of Oakland, city officials and the "man on the street," and learned that there is general satisfaction with the operation of the four year old program.

The system is used in Baltimore, Hyattsville, Brunswick, Md., Paw Paw, North Mountain, Newburg, W. Va., Grafton, Clarksburg, Cameron, Huntington and many other places.

The mayor and council also proposed and an order was entered asking that the B&O open Water Street crossing for traffic and close East Street, which is hazardous and which is closed by about ten times daily in making up trains. The matter has been presented to the company for consideration, with the understanding that the company pay the expense of work done at both Water and East Street crossings.

It is expected that work will be started on the Main Street crossing soon. While this will relieve the two watchmen at that crossing the company officials said that priority rights of the two men may be exercised and they will not be dropped from the payroll.

Keyser Council Hears Discussion Of B&O Crossing

Railroad Proposes Flashing Lights

KEYSER—D. A. Steele, grade crossing engineer for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, spent two hours with Mayor John C. Freeland and members of Council Wednesday discussing the railroad crossings in Keyser, especially the main link between the north side and the business district, Main Street.

Steele told the city officers that the B&O would like to give grade crossing protection in a modern way, through installation of gates and automatic flashing lights. The gates as well as the lights will be completely automatic around the clock for 24 hours daily for protection generally.

He asked the city's approval for the change that will provide protection at a cost of $20,000 for the railroad and no expense to the city.

Similar protection, he explained is now in operation in a number of cities and towns on the B&O system including Oakland, which was visited this week by Mayor Freeland and Councilman Paul Peters, for the purpose of seeing the operation. While at Oakland, the two local men discussed the gates with business men of Oakland, city officials and the "man on the street," and learned that there is general satisfaction with the operation of the four year old program.

The system is used in Baltimore, Hyattsville, Brunswick, Md., Paw Paw, North Mountain, Newburg, W. Va., Grafton, Clarksburg, Cameron, Huntington and many other places.

The mayor and council also proposed and an order was entered asking that the B&O open Water Street crossing for traffic and close East Street, which is hazardous and which is closed by about ten times daily in making up trains. The matter has been presented to the company for consideration, with the understanding that the company pay the expense of work done at both Water and East Street crossings.

It is expected that work will be started on the Main Street crossing soon. While this will relieve the two watchmen at that crossing the company officials said that priority rights of the two men may be exercised and they will not be dropped from the payroll.

Garrett County Grand Jury To Start Monday

Judge Harris Will Deliver Charge

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris will deliver the charge to the September grand jury of the Garrett County Circuit Court in Oakland Monday morning.

W. Dwight Stover, Garrett County state's attorney, said the schedule of cases for the jurors from his office for this term of court is very light.

However, he reported he is still conducting his investigation in an arrest of a Mountain Lake Park resident, Frank "Big Boy" Wood. Stover said he will determine whether or not the arresting officers used unnecessary or brutal force in carrying out their duty.

Subdued After Struggle

Wood was subdued after a struggle with Constable Mark H. Moon and Deputy Sheriff Edward J. Frantz, at the Mt. Lake Motor company garage, but not until John Foley had been deputized to assist, Garrett County officials report.

Wood was charged with assault upon Britton Martin in his store. Martin said that Wood hit him in the stomach as they passed each other in the store and that it was the fourth time that Wood had hit persons in that establishment. It was the first time for him, Martin said.

At a hearing before Magistrate W. O. Bitzer, Wood was found guilty of the charge and was given a year's probationary sentence and released in the custody of Nelson Wood and Samuel Wood.

The request for an investigation into the manner in which the arrest was made was received by Stover on Monday from Clyde Alvin Gnegy of Mountain Lake Park.

Claims Unfair Advantage

Gnegy wrote that the officers took undue advantage of Wood and "frightfully beat and man-handled him. Even after hand-cuffing him and tying his feet together, he was beaten with a broken broom stick."

Moon asserted that Wood forcibly resisted arrest and exhibited teeth bites on his shoulder and bruises on his shins from the struggle.

Frantz also was bitten, Moon said. Both used their fists, he said, and the broom end of a broom stick. Wood sustained bruises and a black eye and was treated by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner after he was brought to the County Jail.

State's Attorney Stover said he was investigating but had not completed his interviews with persons who witnessed the arrest.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9—(INS)—Just as I was catching the plane to San Francisco I received a cable that it's Victor Mature, not Clark Gable, who'll star with Lana Turner in "The True And The Brave."

Couldn't be more surprised because just last week I had word that Clark was on his way to London to start the MGM picture.

With Mature suddenly in the part, it must be that 20th got warm hearted and decided to give Vic a "bonus" movie abroad. He was unhappy about his last loanout and the assignment with Lana should make him smile again.

Lana and Lex Barker are currently honeymooning in Amsterdam where some of the scenes for "The True And The Brave" are being shot.

Next March, certain veteran employes of MGM will reap the benefits from a fabulous pension plan put into effect in the lush days of 1943.

At the time the plan was instigated, actors, executives, secretaries, publicists and technicians who had been at the studio for five years were eligible to share (ten years later) in the pension funds established by the studio.

Naturally, the "payoff" is prorated by salaries and position and the length of time served.

William Powell and Executive Eddie Mannix, long-termers at MGM, collect large sums. Others who will fare well are Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Howard Strickling, Robert Leonard and many more.

Some of Huntington Hartford's millions will be spent on research on women and family life — but not a la Kinsey. Hartford is sending out a crew of research workers and photographers to comb the country for typical, and not so typical, women who head families.

No embarrassing questions will be asked, ladies.

Met Senator Magnusen of Washington at Joseph Schenck's house at dinner. He was on his way to Seattle. He talked very interestingly on many current situations.

Another guest was Mrs. Eta Tsufa F. Lee. She talked fascinatingly of conditions in China. Her husband and two of her sons are still there fighting the Communists. Her 21-year-old boy is with her here, but as the law does not allow both husband and wife to be here, her husband remains in Hong Kong.

She said the Chinese are inherently a loyal people and she believes they went Communist after they were ordered to turn over all their gold because this worked a real hardship on the people.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Fifi Ferry, well-known Hollywood agent, marries lovely Perdita Chandler in Paris. He leaves for France next week.

Lots of photog bulbs flashing at Ciro's when Nicky Hilton and Nina "Honeybear" Warren, the governor's lovely daughter, walked in.

Bob "Bazooka" Burns is in St. Joseph's Hospital reportedly for a checkup but I hear he's sicker than that.

Ventriloquist Paul Winshell and his wife are expecting a little echo this winter.

On Saturday the engagement of Virginia Loew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Loew, to Eugene Allen (wholesale linen executive) was announced at a family dinner. Marcus Loew, Virginia's great grandfather, was one of the founders of MGM.

Queen Elizabeth is having three-D equipment installed in Buckingham Palace, surprising after the reports that the British are bored ho-hum with three-D movies.

Lovely Mrs. Dolly Walker, home from three months in Europe, making Beverly Hills that much brighter and gayer with her presence.

Roscoe Ates will M. C. the Louisville, Kentucky, cerebral palsy telethon on September 12.

Betty Grable's thoroughbred, Laughing Boy, will be run in the Kentucky Derby.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

College Freshman Has Good Excuse For Tardy Arrival

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9 (AP)—In its 90 years, Bryant College has received many explanations from freshmen of why they couldn't arrive on time for the opening of school.

But they never had one such as they got today from Dorothy Leilani Ellis, 18, of Lihue, Kallai, Hawaii.

"I will be delayed in entering," she wrote, "because I will be in Atlantic City participating in the Miss America contest."

Vandalism at the Cumberland Municipal Airport was reported to the Mayor and Council Tuesday by Charles F. Heller, superintendent.

Are you as popular as you'd like to be? If not, this test may indicate your path to improvement!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

You may be a career girl, a student or a homemaker, but if you are a successful person socially — one who gets on well with both men and women — there are certain things that you know, have done, can do or are doing. That is the conclusion reached by a test of a group of most popular women. Want to see how you stack up against them? Answer the following questions with a "yes" or a "no" and compare your rating with the group results given below.

1. If an advantageous invitation came your way right now for a formal affair, would you have to borrow or buy an evening dress?

2. Are you more than five pounds underweight or overweight?

3. Do you express yourself without leaning on such adjectives as "cute," "swell," "terrific" or "awful"?

Check Your Ways

4. Can you honestly say you have made two new friends in the last six months?

5. Is a newspaper's financial page a mystery to you?

6. Is driving a car easy for you?

7. Can you make any man you are with feel important?

7. Can you row a boat — or fix an electric cord?

9. Do you know the difference between a Bear, a Senator and Illini in the sports field?

10. Is cooking beyond your present abilities?

11. Do you prefer three cheaper outfits to one good one?

12. Is a new hair-do once a year enough for you?

13. Do you find pleasure in an art exhibit, a symphony or a lecture?

Know Yourself

14. Do you have a real plan for what you want to do ten years from now?

15. Do you use your leisure time?

16. Has a man complimented you in the past month?

17. Can you play table tennis, canasta, bridge or golf?

18. Do you read two books and a magazine of real merit each month?

The most popular girls all answered "yes" to all but questions 2, 5, 10 and 11. If your life is less enchanting than you wish it might be, perhaps your answers indicate how a change might increase others' interest in you!

He praised Cumberland police for sending cruiser cars to the area in an effort to minimize the damage.

Civil Air Patrol Meets Tonight

Cadets of the local Civil Air Patrol will meet today at 8 p. m. at Cumberland Municipal Airport according to Lt. John F. Wagner, commandant.

Lt. Wagner said all members of the Civil Air Patrol and other interested persons are invited to attend. The group will discuss plans for the coming year.

Cadets are asked to bring along their equipment and records. Transportation will be provided back to downtown Cumberland after the meeting at 9 p. m.

New York state has been the home of more United States vice presidents than any other.

Are you as popular as you'd like to be? If not, this test may indicate your path to improvement!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

You may be a career girl, a student or a homemaker, but if you are a successful person socially — one who gets on well with both men and women — there are certain things that you know, have done, can do or are doing. That is the conclusion reached by a test of a group of most popular women. Want to see how you stack up against them? Answer the following questions with a "yes" or a "no" and compare your rating with the group results given below.

1. If an advantageous invitation came your way right now for a formal affair, would you have to borrow or buy an evening dress?

2. Are you more than five pounds underweight or overweight?

3. Do you express yourself without leaning on such adjectives as "cute," "swell," "terrific" or "awful"?

Check Your Ways

4. Can you honestly say you have made two new friends in the last six months?

5. Is a newspaper's financial page a mystery to you?

6. Is driving a car easy for you?

7. Can you make any man you are with feel important?

7. Can you row a boat — or fix an electric cord?

9. Do you know the difference between a Bear, a Senator and Illini in the sports field?

10. Is cooking beyond your present abilities?

11. Do you prefer three cheaper outfits to one good one?

12. Is a new hair-do once a year enough for you?

13. Can you find pleasure in an art exhibit, a symphony or a lecture?

Know Yourself

14. Do you have a real plan for what you want to do ten years from now?

15. Do you use your leisure time?

16. Has a man complimented you in the past month?

17. Can you play table tennis, canasta, bridge or golf?

18. Do you read two books and a magazine of real merit each month?

The most popular girls all answered "yes" to all but questions 2, 5, 10 and 11. If your life is less enchanting than you wish it might be, perhaps your answers indicate how a change might increase others' interest in you!

YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE

You can achieve an appealing, resonant, sonorous voice — one that can be a vibrant attribute to charm and success — by reading the new booklet, YOUR MOST ATTRACTIVE VOICE, which gives complete instructions on how to overcome such wearisome speaking qualities as tonelessness, dullness and lack of proper modulation. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10c in coin, plus stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tomorrow: Scope of charm.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK—(INS)—No phase of the prisoner exchange in Korea was more blood-chilling than the accounts some of our men gave of the calculated destruction of their minds.

The braver men resisted the efforts of the Reds to wring "confessions" from them, or information to which the Reds were not entitled under the Geneva convention. Unquestionably, many died for persisting in such a stand. Others, like the great World War II ace, Col. Mahurin, attempted suicide when driven at long last to distraction. Still others quickly "confessed," confident that they could later explain away their seeming confirmation of Russian charges against the U. S. A handful came around to the Communist way of thinking and betrayed their fellow Americans either because their love of creature comforts was greater than their love of country or because they had been successfully sold.

"Brain-washing," as Foreign Correspondent Edward Hunter calls it in a shocking book about the practice ("Brain-Washing in Red China," Van Guard Press), became the psychological whip with which our men were almost daily flogged during their captivity in Korea. Strong men broke without a mark on their bodies or "truth serum" in their veins, and almost eagerly parroted preposterous Communist prapaganda over the enemy radio.

Why?

Robert Vogeler, who "confessed" and served 17 months of a 15-year sentence for alleged espionage in Hungary, quoted one of his endless interrogators as boasting, "if God was sitting in that chair we would make him say what we wanted him to say."

Gen. Dean spoke with shattering understatement of sleepless grillings that lasted more than 60 ing at attention for hours under threats of wholesale butchery among buddies, and, of course, out of an overpowering sense of self-preservation. There is no doubt that at this moment, Lavrenti Beria who helpe ddevise this agony, is undergoing it and will appear in court, apparently sound of body and mind, and confess to crimes which not even thos foul monster could have committed.

Hunter recalls in his book that Angus Ward,, the American consul who was arrested by the Reds and held for several months, was not fully believed when — after his release — he told members of the Overseas Press Club in New York that if his Chinese interrogators had questioned him for another two weeks he would have "confessed" to anything they wanted.

Ward also told us on that occasion that while he was stationed in Moscow, he saw an officer of another embassy arrested, held for months, and brought to trial on a rape charge, to which he pleaded guilty. He was deported. When he returned to his embassy to pick up his effects his superiors were stunned to hear him say with great earnestness, "They got the goods on me." His superior knew that he had not been anywhere near the place where the alleged rape took place, and assured him he could now tell the truth in the sanctuary of the embassy.

Months later he wrote to his superiors telling them he recalled vaguely having confessed to a rape charge, in front of them, and reminded them that he was no place near the so-called scene. As for the trial, he had no memory of it.

The brain-washing of Cardinal Mindszenty and his subsequent "confession" and sentence is one of the more vivid demonstrations of what diabolical measures the enemy employs to massacre the spirit and mind as well as the flesh.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

FINESSING A DISEASE

FINESSING is practically a disease, in the way it afflicts some players. As soon as they gain the lead, it seems, they are determined to attempt every finesse in sight, even though some of them should never be taken and others could better be postponed until later in the play. One mark of the better cardsman is his avoidance of unnecessary finesses and the way that he makes the defenders do some of the finessing for him by compelling them to make leads which may aid his cause.

	♠ K 8 ♥ K Q J 8 ♦ 9 8 2 ♣ A Q J 9
♠ Q 10 4 ♥ A 9 6 4 ♦ K 10 4 3 ♣ 8 5	N W E S	♠ A 9 7 6 2 ♥ 7 3 2 ♦ J 6 5 ♣ 10 2
	♠ J 5 3 ♥ 10 5 ♦ A Q 7 ♣ K 7 6 4 3

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣

Maybe that is not extra good bidding, but approximately the same came at two tables of a duplicate. One of the declarers managed to get himself set two tricks, whereas the other made his contract following the same opening lead, the club 8.

The losing declarer won that in dummy and immediately lost the diamond Q finesse to the K. The club 5 came back to the Q and the heart 8 was led to the 10 and A. With no trumps left to return, West sent back the diamond 3, the J forcing the A. South now was able to discard a diamond and a spade on dummy's hearts but he later had to lead toward the spade K, losing two tricks in the suit to be down two.

The winning declarer realized at once that West's trump lead could be only for the purpose of avoiding leads away from his honors. So that the defenders couldn't do that a second time, he took two trump tricks in dummy, then led to the heart 10, which the A won. West reckoned that a heart return to the now established dummy honors would only give South discards, so he had to guess as between spades and diamonds, finally choosing the spade 4. On the dummy's 8, East put the A, then returned the diamond 5. Needing no more help now, South came right in with the A, then led to the dummy's hearts to get two diamond discards on them. After scoring the spade K, he ruffed a diamond, then ruffed his final spade in the dummy. That left him only trumps. He had lost only one trick in each major suit, so made his club game.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ K 7 5 2 ♥ 4 2 ♦ 7 ♣ 10 9 8 6 5 3
♠ 8 ♥ 10 8 5 ♦ K J 6 4 2 ♣ A Q J 2	N W E S	♠ 9 6 4 3 ♥ Q J 9 6 ♦ A 9 8 ♣ 7 4
	♠ A Q J 10 ♥ A K 7 3 ♦ Q 10 5 3 ♣ K

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

How would you explain to a neophyte the difference in number of tricks takeable by trumps if used for ruffing in a 4-Spade contract, or in regular trump tricks?

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK—(INS)—No phase of the prisoner exchange in Korea was more blood-chilling than the accounts some of our men gave of the calculated destruction of their minds.

The braver men resisted the efforts of the Reds to wring "confessions" from them, or information to which the Reds were not entitled under the Geneva convention. Unquestionably, many died for persisting in such a stand. Others, like the great World War II ace, Col. Mahurin, attempted suicide when driven at long last to distraction. Still others quickly "confessed," confident that they could later explain away their seeming confirmation of Russian charges against the U. S. A handful came around to the Communist way of thinking and betrayed their fellow Americans either because their love of creature comforts was greater than their love of country or because they had been successfully sold.

"Brain-washing," as Foreign Correspondent Edward Hunter calls it in a shocking book about the practice ("Brain-Washing in Red China," Van Guard Press), became the psychological whip with which our men were almost daily flogged during their captivity in Korea. Strong men broke without a mark on their bodies or "truth serum" in their veins, and almost eagerly parroted preposterous Communist prapaganda over the enemy radio.

Why?

Robert Vogeler, who "confessed" and served 17 months of a 15-year sentence for alleged espionage in Hungary, quoted one of his endless interrogators as boasting, "if God was sitting in that chair we would make him say what we wanted him to say."

Gen. Dean spoke with shattering understatement of sleepless grillings that lasted more than 60 ing at attention for hours under threats of wholesale butchery among buddies, and, of course, out of an overpowering sense of self-preservation. There is no doubt that at this moment, Lavrenti Beria who helpe ddevise this agony, is undergoing it and will appear in court, apparently sound of body and mind, and confess to crimes which not even thos foul monster could have committed.

Hunter recalls in his book that Angus Ward,, the American consul who was arrested by the Reds and held for several months, was not fully believed when — after his release — he told members of the Overseas Press Club in New York that if his Chinese interrogators had questioned him for another two weeks he would have "confessed" to anything they wanted.

Ward also told us on that occasion that while he was stationed in Moscow, he saw an officer of another embassy arrested, held for months, and brought to trial on a rape charge, to which he pleaded guilty. He was deported. When he returned to his embassy to pick up his effects his superiors were stunned to hear him say with great earnestness, "They got the goods on me." His superior knew that he had not been anywhere near the place where the alleged rape took place, and assured him he could now tell the truth in the sanctuary of the embassy.

Months later he wrote to his superiors telling them he recalled vaguely having confessed to a rape charge, in front of them, and reminded them that he was no place near the so-called scene. As for the trial, he had no memory of it.

The brain-washing of Cardinal Mindszenty and his subsequent "confession" and sentence is one of the more vivid demonstrations of what diabolical measures the enemy employs to massacre the spirit and mind as well as the flesh.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

FINESSING A DISEASE

FINESSING is practically a disease, in the way it afflicts some players. As soon as they gain the lead, it seems, they are determined to attempt every finesse in sight, even though some of them should never be taken and others could better be postponed until later in the play. One mark of the better cardsman is his avoidance of unnecessary finesses and the way that he makes the defenders do some of the finessing for him by compelling them to make leads which may aid his cause.

Maybe that is not extra good bidding, but approximately the same came at two tables of a duplicate. One of the declarers managed to get himself set two tricks, whereas the other made his contract following the same opening lead, the club 8.

The losing declarer won that in dummy and immediately lost the diamond Q finesse to the K. The club 5 came back to the Q and the heart 8 was led to the 10 and A. With no trumps left to return, West sent back the diamond 3, the J forcing the A. South now was able to discard a diamond and a spade on dummy's hearts but he later had to lead toward the spade K, losing two tricks in the suit to be down two.

The winning declarer realized at once that West's trump lead could be only for the purpose of avoiding leads away from his honors. So that the defenders couldn't do that a second time, he took two trump tricks in dummy, then led to the heart 10, which the A won. West reckoned that a heart return to the now established dummy honors would only give South discards, so he had to guess as between spades and diamonds, finally choosing the spade 4. On the dummy's 8, East put the A, then returned the diamond 5. Needing no more help now, South came right in with the A, then led to the dummy's hearts to get two diamond discards on them. After scoring the spade K, he ruffed a diamond, then ruffed his final spade in the dummy. That left him only trumps. He had lost only one trick in each major suit, so made his club game.

How would you explain to a neophyte the difference in number of tricks takeable by trumps if used for ruffing in a 4-Spade contract, or in regular trump tricks?

Stock Market, In Routine Performance, Holds Steady

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP) — The Stock Market held steady today in a routine performance.

Gains seldom went as high as a point in key segments of the market. Losses were likewise restricted. Railroads did well along with many oils, utilities, chemicals, radio-televisions, and building materials.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held unchanged today at $104.10, which is only $1.70 above the low point of the year reached a week ago Monday. The industrial component of the average was off 10 cents, the railroads were up 10 cents, and the utilities remained unchanged.

The list was composed of 1,042 individual issues 51 more than yesterday. There were 381 gainers and 379 losers—which gives a good idea of the balance in the market. Two new highs were attained—Real Silk Hoisery Mills and New York Shipbuilding.

Volume amounted to 860,000 shares, up considerably from yesterday's 740,000 shares. That was the lowest in four years.

American Telephone topped the most active list unchanged at 155⅞ with 15,400 shares traded, including a block of 2,500 shares at 155⅞.

Stock Market, In Routine Performance, Holds Steady

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (AP) — The Stock Market held steady today in a routine performance.

Gains seldom went as high as a point in key segments of the market. Losses were likewise restricted. Railroads did well along with many oils, utilities, chemicals, radio-televisions, and building materials.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held unchanged today at $104.10, which is only $1.70 above the low point of the year reached a week ago Monday. The industrial component of the average was off 10 cents, the railroads were up 10 cents, and the utilities remained unchanged.

The list was composed of 1,042 individual issues 51 more than yesterday. There were 381 gainers and 379 losers—which gives a good idea of the balance in the market. Two new highs were attained—Real Silk Hoisery Mills and New York Shipbuilding.

Volume amounted to 860,000 shares, up considerably from yesterday's 740,000 shares. That was the lowest in four years.

American Telephone topped the most active list unchanged at 155⅞ with 15,400 shares traded, including a block of 2,500 shares at 155⅞.

Medal Of Honor Received By Ridgeley Hero's Widow

U. S. Highest Award Given William Shuck

Legion Proposes Perpetual Memorial

The nation's highest military award, the Medal of Honor, was received yesterday by the widow of a 26-year-old Ridgeley Marine sergeant who was killed in Korea, July 3, 1952, because he placed the safety of his men above his own.

Vice President Richard Nixon presented the medal to Mrs. Victoria L. Shuck Jr., of Waukegan, Ill., who received it for her husband, Staff Sgt. William E. Shuck Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shuck Sr., 44 Carpenter Avenue, Ridgeley, at a ceremony at the Marine Corps Barracks, Washington, D. C.

Sgt. Shuck paid the supreme sacrifice while aiding other wounded Marines in combat in Korea.

Leads Machine Gun Squad

At the time, the local hero led his machine gun squad for the 7th Regiment, First Marine Division, in an assault on a strongly fortified hill position July 3, 1952. The attackers ran into heavy enemy fire.

The leader of the infantry squad which Shuck's unit was supporting fell wounded. Shuck was also hit, but he took command of both squads and led them forward.

Twice Shuck led his combined forces against the Communist stronghold. Shuck was wounded a second time, but he refused to leave his men for treatment.

In the words of the official citation accompanying the award of the nation's highest military honor, Shuck "remained in the foremost position under heavy fire until assured that all dead and wounded were evacuated."

Shuck's concern for his men was foremost in his mind until the end. In the instant that he stooped to pick up one end of a stretcher on which the last wounded Marine was to be carried away, Shuck was hit and killed by a Communist sniper's bullet.

Gave Life For Country

"He gallantly gave his life for his country," the official citation said.

Members of Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, are considering changing the name of the Ridgeley Post to the William E. Shuck Post as a perpetual memorial to their hometown hero.

A resolution to change the name will be read a second time at a meeting Tuesday. After a third reading, Legion members will vote on the proposal.

Sgt. Shuck served in the Navy during World War II from September 21, 1944, following his graduation from Ridgeley High School, until his discharge in July, 1946.

Fire Burns On Wills Mountain

The first forest fire in Western Maryland since last weekend's showers, yesterday burned about a half acre on Wills Mountain opposite Bowman's Addition, according to District Forester William H. Johnson.

Brook Bodkin, senior forest supervisor; Ralph Witt, forest superintendent at Green Ridge, and members of the Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Department checked the blaze, which was spotted about 1 p. m.

Yesterday's fire was the fourth in Johnson's four-county district so far in September. The other three burned over a total of about one-and-one-half acre. One was near Oldtown, another in Garrett County and the third in Frederick County.

Johnson reported 10 August fires in his district, five in Allegany County and five in Garrett County, burning a total of about eight-and-one-half acres.

Farmers Given Data On Wheat Marketing

Area farmers who grow more than 15 acres of wheat — even though they have allotments of less than 15 acres — should understand that their wheat will be subject to marketing quotas this year, Albert O'Neal, chairman of the County Production and Marketing Administration Committee, announces.

In an effort to avoid misunderstanding about how much wheat on these farms would be subject to a marketing quota penalty, O'Neal gave this explanation of how the "excess acres" will be determined.

The excess acres in turn will be used in computing the farm marketing excess, on which a marketing quota penalty will be levied.

The chairman explained that, in the case of a farm with more than 15 acres of wheat, where the farm had a wheat acreage allotment but the grower did not comply with it, the "excess acres" would be those in excess of the farm acreage allotment. For example, a farm with a 17-acre allotment, with 20 acres classified as wheat acreage for 1954, would have an excess of 3 acres. A farm with an 8-acre allotment, with 17 acres of wheat for 1954, would have 9 acres in excess. However, a farm with an 8-acre allotment, with only 15 acres of wheat for 1954, would have no wheat subject to marketing quotas and no penalties would be due.

A farm without a wheat acreage allotment, with more than 15 acres of wheat in 1954, would have the entire wheat acreage considered as "excess" wheat acres.

Growers who exceed their farm wheat acreage allotment will not be eligible for price supports at the 90-percent-of-parity rate available to cooperators.

O'Neal urged growers who have further questions about the operation of the wheat quota-allotment program to get in touch with the County PMA Office.

Local Industry Promotion Stamp Draws Comment

One local business man's effort to simulate new industry in the Cumberland area has attracted favorable comment in "Advertising Requirements," a new monthly magazine of the advertising business.

Artmor Plastics Corporation, 1003 Oldtown Road, drew praise for a rubber stamp designed for use on envelopes. Arthur C. Morgan, president of the corporation, designed the stamp.

"Looking For a New Plant Site?" the stamp asks. "For Security and Growth Potential Come to Cumberland," it adds.

Besides commenting upon the stamp, the magazine reproduced a copy of the stamp's message in its September issue. Morgan said yesterday that he has received letters from several persons who saw the stamp and the article in the magazine.

Engineers Visit LaVale School Proposed Site

Several Decisions On Project Made

Engineers representing the architectural firm of Johannes and Murray, Silver Spring, visited the site of the proposed new LaVale Elementary School yesterday on Parkside Boulevard to investigate several problems concerning the construction.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said he visited the school site with Richard L. Lutz, civil engineer; Louis C. Scheibla, electrical engineer, both with the Johannes and Murray firm, and J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian here.

They decided to notify the LaVale Sanitary Commission that adequate water lines and fire protection must be assured for the proposed new school. They also determined the approximate location for filter beds and effluent from the school's sewage disposal system.

Another problem, which concerns Scheibla primarily, is adequate power for the proposed new school. He contacted representatives of the Potomac Edison Company who are promising cooperation.

Johannes and Murray received the contract July 14 by the Allegany County Board of Education to draw plans for the LaVale School. So far only a few pencilled sketches have been shown Webster.

The superintendent has hopes that the LaVale School might be completed for opening when the 1954-55 school year starts a year hence.

Two Petersburg Families Await Return Of POWs

By LARRY T. GRECO

Two Petersburg, W. Va., families are anxiously awaiting the return of two Korean prisoners of war who were released by the Communists last week at Panmunjom in Operation Big Switch.

The two soldiers are Sgt. First Class Ralph W. Hartman, 25, grandson of Sarah H. Mongold, Route 22, Petersburg, and Sgt. James A. Alt, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs Joseph K. Alt, Petersburg.

Sgt. Hartman, of Company B, 31st Regiment, Seventh Division, was released by the Reds Friday, while Sgt. Alt was freed Tuesday.

Six Years Service

Sgt. Hartman's grandmother, his next of kin, said she had been sitting up every night until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning for news of her grandson's release. She is 66 years old.

"I have prayed and shed tears waiting for Ralph to come home," she said, "and now I can only say, thank God."

Mrs. Mongold said Sgt. Hartman enlisted in the Army about six years ago and served in Korea about two years before the conflict began. After his two years in Korea, he was given a 30-day furlough, and while he was visiting his grandmother, war broke out in that Orient country. He was called back and sent to Korea again, this time to fight.

The last time Mrs. Mongold received a letter from Sgt. Hartman was about six weeks ago, and it had been written about two weeks before Christmas. In the letter, her grandson said he was in good health and was being treated fairly good. He added he was playing some basketball at the prison camp.

Mrs. Mongold said she raised Sgt. Hartman since he was a baby when his parents died, and that he was just like a son to her.

Mrs. Mongold said a wounded POW, released in the first prisoner exchange in May, visited her shortly after he returned to his home in Franklin, W. Va., with news of Sgt. Hartman.

He was Theodore Willis, a Negro prisoner of war who was with Sgt. Hartman for 32 months at Prison Camp No. 5 in North Korea. Willis told Mrs. Mongold he and her grandson were good friends at the prison camp and that Sgt. Hartman was then in good health.

Captured In 1950

The other Petersburg POW, Sgt. Alt, had been a prisoner of war since December 2, 1950. He enlisted in the Army in December, 1948 and was sent overseas in April, 1949. He was captured during the fierce fighting near the Yalu River in December, 1950 just after the Chinese Reds entered the Korean war.

His family received several letters from James during his imprisonment and in one letter, said he had been held in Camp No. 1 for some time. His last letter was dated April, this year, which said his treatment had been better of late and his food had been improved.

Sgt. Alt was 22 when he enlisted, and it was his first hitch with the Army. The Alt family has resided in Petersburg since 1930.

ON WAY HOME—Sgt. James A. "Squint" Alt, 27-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Alt, Petersburg, W. Va., will be returning home soon following his release from a Korean prison camp by the Chinese Reds this week. Alt, who has not been home in nearly five years, was a prisoner of war for 32 months.

Three youths were put on probation for two years yesterday in Allegany County Juvenile Court after receiving suspended sentences to the Maryland Training School for Boys.

The three teenage boys admitted breaking into one of the bathhouses at the Celanese swimming pool, stealing a number of articles and throwing garbage into the pool.

Following a verbal spanking by Magistrate Alban C. Thompson, the three were paroled on condition they be of good behavior and attend school and their respective churches.

Thompson pointed out to the trio that vandalism in the county "has to be stopped." Energy used in "breaking and destroying property" should be channeled into constructive lines, he said, and it is up to the Juvenile Court and parents to see that it is.

County Voter List Drops 21 During August

42,047 Remain On September 1

Allegany County had 42,047 registered voters as of September 1, a net loss during the month of August of 21, according to the records of the County Board of Election Supervisors.

During August, 13 new voters registered so they will be qualified for next year's election. However, Irvin J. Neat, Republican registrar, and C. William McDermott, Democrat registrar, struck off the books the names of 34 voters who have died.

Two voters changing party affiliation last month canceled each other as one moved from the Republican to Democrat fold and the other switched allegiance to the Republican party.

Of the 13 new registrants added in August, nine were Republicans and four Democrats. The nine Republicans included four women and five men and the four Democrats one woman and three men. Stricken off because of death were 22 Republicans, nine women and 13 men, and 12 Democrats, three women and nine men.

Six citizens changed their voting place from one precinct to another last month.

With the August changes the total of registered voters included 41,555 white persons and 492 colored. Of the 23,582 registered Republicans 12,217 are men and 11,365 women. Among the 18,180 Democrats are 9,454 men and 8,726 women.

Minor party affiliations were unchanged by the August activity. There still are 208 independent voters (165 men and 43 women) who have declined to state party preference, 30 Socialists (20 men and 10 women), and 47 (28 men and 19 women) belonging to other parties.

Those now qualified to vote who would like to register may visit the Board of Election Supervisors' office in the Court House basement between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday through Friday or 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday.

Income Tax For Third Quarter Due Sept. 15

Estimated income tax for the third quarter is due September 15, taxpayers were reminded yesterday by R. J. Stakem, in charge of the local Internal Revenue Office.

Stakem said L. A. Chamberlain, Baltimore, district director of Internal Revenue, has completed mailing 114,000 estimated income tax bills. Taxpayers are urged to return the bill with their remittance since it insures proper credit to their account. A taxpayer's canceled check or money order stub will be his receipt.

If this procedure is not followed, Stakem pointed out, a taxpayer's payment mailed in without the bill would cause a delay in posting since the office would not know the account number. Hence it would be placed in an unclassified account where it would remain until the credit could be associated with the account.

In case there is an adjustment on a taxpayer's third quarter bill, he should mark the face "amended" and supply correct figures in spaces provided on the reverse side of the form.

If the tax was paid in full when filed or if it was non taxable, a taxpayer would not receive a statement, Stakem said, but if he had additional tax to pay on the third quarter, he is required to file an amended 1040 estimated tax return.

Such forms may be obtained at the local revenue office, Room 301, Post Office Building. Remittance can also be made by cash or check at the local office or can be mailed to the Office of the Director of Internal Revenue, Room 130, Custom House, Lombard and Gay Streets, Baltimore.

Blood Donors Give 240 Pints

Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, collected 240 pints of blood during the two-day September visit of the bloodmobile unit from Johnstown, Pa. Regional Headquarters.

This was 60 pints below the monthly county quota of 300 productive pints.

During the unit's visit at the American Legion Home in Frostburg yesterday, 107 pints were contributed by donors in that area. There were 117 donors scheduled for the visit while only 81 kept their appointments.

Officials said there were 57 "walk-ins" which included representatives from the Mt. Savage Lions Club and the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Company. Of the complete total, 31 were rejections.

Medal Of Honor Received By Ridgeley Hero's Widow

U. S. Highest Award Given William Shuck

Legion Proposes Perpetual Memorial

The nation's highest military award, the Medal of Honor, was received yesterday by the widow of a 26-year-old Ridgeley Marine sergeant who was killed in Korea, July 3, 1952, because he placed the safety of his men above his own.

Vice President Richard Nixon presented the medal to Mrs. Victoria L. Shuck Jr., of Waukegan, Ill., who received it for her husband, Staff Sgt. William E. Shuck Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shuck Sr., 44 Carpenter Avenue, Ridgeley, at a ceremony at the Marine Corps Barracks, Washington, D. C.

Sgt. Shuck paid the supreme sacrifice while aiding other wounded Marines in combat in Korea.

Leads Machine Gun Squad

At the time, the local hero led his machine gun squad for the 7th Regiment, First Marine Division, in an assault on a strongly fortified hill position July 3, 1952. The attackers ran into heavy enemy fire.

The leader of the infantry squad which Shuck's unit was supporting fell wounded. Shuck was also hit, but he took command of both squads and led them forward.

Twice Shuck led his combined forces against the Communist stronghold. Shuck was wounded a second time, but he refused to leave his men for treatment.

In the words of the official citation accompanying the award of the nation's highest military honor, Shuck "remained in the foremost position under heavy fire until assured that all dead and wounded were evacuated."

Shuck's concern for his men was foremost in his mind until the end. In the instant that he stooped to pick up one end of a stretcher on which the last wounded Marine was to be carried away, Shuck was hit and killed by a Communist sniper's bullet.

Gave Life For Country

"He gallantly gave his life for his country," the official citation said.

Members of Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, are considering changing the name of the Ridgeley Post to the William E. Shuck Post as a perpetual memorial to their hometown hero.

A resolution to change the name will be read a second time at a meeting Tuesday. After a third reading, Legion members will vote on the proposal.

Sgt. Shuck served in the Navy during World War II from September 21, 1944, following his graduation from Ridgeley High School, until his discharge in July, 1946.

He entered the U. S. Marine Corps, November 13, 1947, received basic training at Parris Island, S. C., and was sent overseas in January of 1952.

Legion Member

Sgt. Shuck was a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Ridgeley, and Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion. He served as historian of the Legion Post in 1947 and 1948. Reburial rites were conducted by Knobley Mountain Post September 13 of last year.

Following Sgt. Shuck's discharge from the Navy in 1946, he worked at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and while attending school at Ridgeley he was an employe in the mail room of the Times and Alleganian Company, publishers of the News and Times papers. At Ridgeley High School he was on the school paper and yearbook staffs.

Widow Receives Hero's Medal Of Honor

Mrs. William E. Shuck Jr., of Waukeegan, Ill., receives from Vice President Richard Nixon the Medal of Honor won by her husband, Staff Sgt. William E. Shuck Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shuck Sr., 44 Carpenter Avenue, Ridgeley. The local hero died while helping other wounded Marines in action in Korea. The presentation was made in a ceremony at Washington, D. C., yesterday.

Farmers Given Data On Wheat Marketing

Area farmers who grow more than 15 acres of wheat — even though they have allotments of less than 15 acres — should understand that their wheat will be subject to marketing quotas this year, Albert O'Neal, chairman of the County Production and Marketing Administration Committee, announces.

In an effort to avoid misunderstanding about how much wheat on these farms would be subject to a marketing quota penalty, O'Neal gave this explanation of how the "excess acres" will be determined.

The excess acres in turn will be used in computing the farm marketing excess, on which a marketing quota penalty will be levied.

The chairman explained that, in the case of a farm with more than 15 acres of wheat, where the farm had a wheat acreage allotment but the grower did not comply with it, the "excess acres" would be those in excess of the farm acreage allotment. For example, a farm with a 17-acre allotment, with 20 acres classified as wheat acreage for 1954, would have an excess of 3 acres. A farm with an 8-acre allotment, with 17 acres of wheat for 1954, would have 9 acres in excess. However, a farm with an 8-acre allotment, with only 15 acres of wheat for 1954, would have no wheat subject to marketing quotas and no penalties would be due.

A farm without a wheat acreage allotment, with more than 15 acres of wheat in 1954, would have the entire wheat acreage considered as "excess" wheat acres.

Growers who exceed their farm wheat acreage allotment will not be eligible for price supports at the 90-percent-of-parity rate available to cooperators.

O'Neal urged growers who have further questions about the operation of the wheat quota-allotment program to get in touch with the County PMA Office.

Engineers Visit LaVale School Proposed Site

Several Decisions On Project Made

Engineers representing the architectural firm of Johannes and Murray, Silver Spring, visited the site of the proposed new LaVale Elementary School yesterday on Parkside Boulevard to investigate several problems concerning the construction.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said he visited the school site with Richard L. Lutz, civil engineer; Louis C. Scheibla, electrical engineer, both with the Johannes and Murray firm, and J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian here.

They decided to notify the LaVale Sanitary Commission that adequate water lines and fire protection must be assured for the proposed new school. They also determined the approximate location for filter beds and effluent from the school's sewage disposal system.

Another problem, which concerns Scheibla primarily, is adequate power for the proposed new school. He contacted representatives of the Potomac Edison Company who are promising cooperation.

Johannes and Murray received the contract July 14 by the Allegany County Board of Education to draw plans for the LaVale School. So far only a few pencilled sketches have been shown Webster.

The superintendent has hopes that the LaVale School might be completed for opening when the 1954-55 school year starts a year hence.

Two Petersburg Families Await Return Of POWs

By LARRY T. GRECO

Two Petersburg, W. Va., families are anxiously awaiting the return of two Korean prisoners of war who were released by the Communists last week at Panmunjom in Operation Big Switch.

The two soldiers are Sgt. First Class Ralph W. Hartman, 25, grandson of Sarah H. Mongold, Route 22, Petersburg, and Sgt. James A. Alt, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Alt, Petersburg.

Sgt. Hartman, of Company B, 31st Regiment, Seventh Division, was released by the Reds Friday, while Sgt. Alt was freed Tuesday.

Six Years Service

Sgt. Hartman's grandmother, his next of kin, said she had been sitting up every night until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning for news of her grandson's release. She is 66 years old.

"I have prayed and shed tears waiting for Ralph to come home," she said, "and now I can only say, thank God."

Mrs. Mongold said Sgt. Hartman enlisted in the Army about six years ago and served in Korea about two years before the conflict began. After his two years in Korea, he was given a 30-day furlough, and while he was visiting his grandmother, war broke out in that Orient country. He was called back and sent to Korea again, this time to fight.

The last time Mrs. Mongold received a letter from Sgt. Hartman was about six weeks ago, and it had been written about two weeks before Christmas. In the letter, her grandson said he was in good health and was being treated fairly good. He added he was playing some basketball at the prison camp.

Mrs. Mongold said she raised Sgt. Hartman since he was a baby when his parents died, and that he was just like a son to her.

Mrs. Mongold said a wounded POW, released in the first prisoner exchange in May, visited her shortly after he returned to his home in Franklin, W. Va., with news of Sgt. Hartman.

He was Theodore Willis, a Negro prisoner of war who was with Sgt. Hartman for 32 months at Prison Camp No. 5 in North Korea. Willis told Mrs. Mongold he and her grandson were good friends at the prison camp and that Sgt. Hartman was then in good health.

Captured In 1950

The other Petersburg POW, Sgt. Alt, had been a prisoner of war since December 2, 1950. He enlisted in the Army in December, 1948 and was sent overseas in April, 1949. He was captured during the fierce fighting near the Yalu River in December, 1950 just after the Chinese Reds entered the Korean war.

His family received several letters from James during his imprisonment and in one letter, said he had been held in Camp No. 1 for some time. His last letter was dated April, this year, which said his treatment had been better of late and his food had been improved.

Sgt. Alt was 22 when he enlisted, and it was his first hitch with the Army. The Alt family has resided in Petersburg since 1930.

ON WAY HOME—Sgt. James A. "Squint" Alt, 27-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Alt, Petersburg, W. Va., will be returning home soon following his release from a Korean prison camp by the Chinese Reds this week. Alt, who has not been home in nearly five years, was a prisoner of war for 32 months.

Following a verbal spanking by Magistrate Alban C. Thompson, the three were paroled on condition they be of good behavior and attend school and their respective churches.

Thompson pointed out to the trio that vandalism in the county "has to be stopped." Energy used in "breaking and destroying property" should be channeled into constructive lines, he said, and it is up to the Juvenile Court and parents to see that it is.

County Voter List Drops 21 During August

42,047 Remain On September 1

Allegany County had 42,047 registered voters as of September 1, a net loss during the month of August of 21, according to the records of the County Board of Election Supervisors.

During August, 13 new voters registered so they will be qualified for next year's election. However, Irvin J. Neat, Republican registrar, and C. William McDermott, Democrat registrar, struck off the books the names of 34 voters who have died.

Two voters changing party affiliation last month canceled each other as one moved from the Republican to Democrat fold and the other switched allegiance to the Republican party.

Of the 13 new registrants added in August, nine were Republicans and four Democrats. The nine Republicans included four women and five men and the four Democrats one woman and three men. Stricken off because of death were 22 Republicans, nine women and 13 men, and 12 Democrats, three women and nine men.

Six citizens changed their voting place from one precinct to another last month.

With the August changes the total of registered voters included 41,555 white persons and 492 colored. Of the 23,582 registered Republicans 12,217 are men and 11,365 women. Among the 18,180 Democrats are 9,454 men and 8,726 women.

Minor party affiliations were unchanged by the August activity. There still are 208 independent voters (165 men and 43 women) who have declined to state party preference, 30 Socialists (20 men and 10 women), and 47 (28 men and 19 women) belonging to other parties.

Those now qualified to vote who would like to register may visit the Board of Election Supervisors' office in the Court House basement between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. Monday through Friday or 9 a. m. to noon on Saturday.

Income Tax For Third Quarter Due Sept. 15

Estimated income tax for the third quarter is due September 15, taxpayers were reminded yesterday by R. J. Stakem, in charge of the local Internal Revenue Office.

Stakem said L. A. Chamberlain, Baltimore, district director of Internal Revenue, has completed mailing 114,000 estimated income tax bills. Taxpayers are urged to return the bill with their remittance since it insures proper credit to their account. A taxpayer's canceled check or money order stub will be his receipt.

If this procedure is not followed, Stakem pointed out, a taxpayer's payment mailed in without the bill would cause a delay in posting since the office would not know the account number. Hence it would be placed in an unclassified account where it would remain until the credit could be associated with the account.

In case there is an adjustment on a taxpayer's third quarter bill, he should mark the face "amended" and supply correct figures in spaces provided on the reverse side of the form.

If the tax was paid in full when filed or if it was non taxable, a taxpayer would not receive a statement, Stakem said, but if he had additional tax to pay on the third quarter, he is required to file an amended 1040 estimated tax return.

Such forms may be obtained at the local revenue office, Room 301, Post Office Building. Remittance can also be made by cash or check at the local office or can be mailed to the Office of the Director of Internal Revenue, Room 130, Custom House, Lombard and Gay Streets, Baltimore.

Blood Donors Give 240 Pints

Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, collected 240 pints of blood during the two-day September visit of the bloodmobile unit from Johnstown, Pa. Regional Headquarters.

This was 60 pints below the monthly county quota of 300 productive pints.

During the unit's visit at the American Legion Home in Frostburg yesterday, 107 pints were contributed by donors in that area. There were 117 donors scheduled for the visit while only 81 kept their appointments.

Officials said there were 57 "walk-ins" which included representatives from the Mt. Savage Lions Club and the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Company. Of the complete total, 31 were rejections.
